FINNS SCORE 2D BIG VICTORY

Retake Salla as Reds Flee Death Struggle

HELSINKI, Jan. 5 (INS)—Recapturing the ruined town of Salla, Finland's fighting men today scored their second major victory of the war in a fierce battle on the north central front.

Amid indications that the new Finnish triumph is just as decisive as the Russian debacle last week at Suomussalmi, the Finns were reported to have vanquished an entire Soviet division, which today was fleeing in wild disorder toward the Soviet frontier.

The long-anticipated victory came after more than two days of violent fighting in which thousands of Finnish and Red army troops were locked in a grim death struggle.

PLAN 2-MILLION ARMY

The routed Russian regiment was one which had been rushed to the north central battle front by the Russian high command after the Finns surrounded and cut to pieces the 163d Soviet division in the war's first decisive battle near Suomussalmi.

Forced to drastic measures by continued Finnish victories, Russia has decided to throw 2,000,000 men into the field, according to reliable information here.

This huge force will be divided into two sections, one-half attacking the Karelian isthmus and north of Lake Ladoga, while the balance is set up as a reserve force behind the main lines and subjected to intensive training under officers already experienced in Finnish warfare.

The Russian decision came as no surprise to the Finns, who are convinced the Soviets must soon precipitate major warfare by sheer force of numbers to escape ignominy or defeat by a nation one-fiftieth their size.

ENCIRCLE RUSSIANS

Reports from the front indicated that today's victory was won by means of the same tactics that brought about the stunning reverse for the Red army last week.

The Finnish forces, these advices said, waited coolly while the Russians sent huge reinforcements into a carefully planned Finnish trap.

The defending forces then carefully encircled the Russians and finally closed in with deadly swiftness, routing the Russians after a bloody struggle.

With the Russians now beating a hasty retreat for Soviet territory, the Finns were reported mopping up the entire Salla area, capturing huge quantities of abandoned Soviet war materials.

Other reports, still unconfirmed,

Finn Price List Lure to Reds To Give Up Arms

HELSINKI, Jan. 5 (INS)—Finnish aviators continued today to scatter propaganda leaflets behind the Russian front and at Leningrad, one huge batch of which gave the following instructions to facilitate Soviet surrender.

"Form groups of from six to eight men. Sling rifle from the shoulder muzzle downward and raise hands aloft."

Other pamphlets carried a price list showing what the Finnish army would pay for surrendered weapons. A pistol will bring 100 rubles, the announcement said, a rifle 150 rubles, a machine-gun between 1000 and 1500 rubles and a tank 10,000 rubles.

"In addition," the leaflets read, "Finland will pay 1000 American dollars for each airplane received undamaged, plus free transportation for the pilot to any place in the world he wishes to go."

MUTINIES ADMITTED BY SOVIET

LONDON, Jan. 5 (INS)—An official statement at Leningrad admitting for the first time that Russian soldiers have been deserting from the Red Army was reported by the London Daily Express today.

The newspaper said the statement blamed officers for the desertions and stated:

"Some elements of the Red army proved they are unable to endure the rigors of the campaign against our enemies.

"Among the officers there are still men who profess sympathy with Socialist ideals but who now prove they are anti-revolutionary and reactionary.

"They have been waiting for a chance to betray the fatherland.

"These blackguards led men under false pretense to the enemy camp and forced them to surrender. We warn every soldier to guard against malicious propaganda . . . We give full powers to every individual member of the army to act according to his discretion should he find anyone guilty of such treason.

"The spirit of surrender in preference to heroic resistance is entirely contrary to the glorious traditions of the Red army."

The Express said the statement appealed to soldiers not to waste supplies.

The Soviet war ministry was quoted as concluding its statement with these words:

"The oath of enlistment demands that a soldier give his life without hesitation in defense of the fatherland. Anyone breaking the oath deserves the cruellest [illegible]."

Fighting on Finland's eastern border developed into hand-to-hand guerrilla encounters today, with both Russians and Finns using ski troops for sudden dashes over the bitterly cold and snow-swept front.

Gone for the present was the threat of a Russian drive westward across Finland's narrow "waist." The Finnish defeat of the Reds' 163d Division on icy Lake Kianta had shattered the Russian battle strength.

There was virtually no news of the German-British-French war. Germany reported "somewhat livelier" artillery action on the western front and continuing air reconnaissance.

On the diplomatic front Russia was reported concluding a commerce treaty with Bulgaria. The Soviets began similar negotiations with Japan and continued trade talks with Germany.

Although it had been rumored in Sofia that Russia might ask for military concessions in return for trade, Bulgarians in Moscow said the pact dealt principally with Black sea shipping.

The Hungarian foreign minister, Count Istvan Csaky, arrived in Venice for talks with Italian Foreign Minister Ciano which were expected to touch upon Hungary's territorial claims on Rumania, relations between Hungary and Jugoslavia and the question of possible Russian steps in the Balkans.

In the Far East, in an incident of possible serious complications, a United States sentry at Peiping was reported to have shot and seriously wounded a Japanese private.

BRITISH WARSHIP IS REPORTED SUNK

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (INS)—The British destroyer Viscount, of 1120 tons with a normal complement of 134 men, struck a mine in the North sea and sank, it was claimed early today in a German short wave broadcast quoting the Rome radio, according to Columbia Broadcasting System.

CBS reported the broadcast, shortwaved to this country by DJC in Berlin, stated:

"The Rome radio reports the British warship Viscount, 1120 tons, built in 1918, struck a mine and sank in the North sea."

No further details were given and no mention was made of any crew losses.

The Viscount, completed in March, 1918, mounted four 4-inch guns and other armament, including a pompom gun and six torpedo tubes, according to "Jane's Fighting Ships." She has a speed of 35 knots.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (INS)—The British Admiralty is "ignoring" a German radio claim that the British destroyer Viscount struck a mine and sank, it was stated authoritatively.

HOLD 'BABY FACE' YOUTH AS SLAYER

Seventeen-year-old Michael Virga, allegedly confessed slayer of a South End crippled storekeeper in an attempted holdup, was held without bail for the grand jury in municipal court today, after he had pleaded not guilty to a murder charge.

His older brother, Vincent, known also as Louis, who found the storekeeper dying in his shop at Albany and Rose sts., was held in $500 as a material witness on request of Police Sergt. Arthur Eunson of the South End station.

The mother of the youths, another brother and several relatives, including a number of women, were in the spectators' benches as Michael was arraigned and immediately said he wanted to see a lawyer.

"How do you expect to get a lawyer?" he was asked by Judge Daniel J. Gillen.

"My brother is here," replied the youth. "He can make some arrangements."

The second elder brother, a resident of East Boston, was called to the bench with the mother and they conferred with Judge Gillen, the case then resuming without an attorney on the question of probable cause for presentation to the grand jury.

Testimony was given by Special Officers Lawrence Boyle and Edward J. McDonald and Sergt. Ray Monahan, all of South End station, regarding the finding of the body and young Virga's alleged confession to the slaying during a holdup attempt. He was traced by a "baby face" description whispered by the victim.

Hunt Nazi Raider Off Montevideo

MONTEVIDEO, Jan. 5 (AP)—Concentration of four British cruisers off Montevideo caused speculation today on whether a hunt was on for another German raider like the scuttled pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

After the cruiser Ajax put out to sea, a port observer sighted two other warships, which he positively identified as the Cumberland and Shropshire, about two hours' sailing off shore.

The cruiser Achilles was reported to have left Buenos Aires, apparently to join the squadron.

The Achilles and Ajax, together with the cruiser Exeter, were responsible for defeat of the Graf Spee.

30-Ounce Infant Gains in Incubator

PITTSFIELD, Jan. 5 (AP)—Tiny Mary Theresa Nichols, who will be a month old Monday, weighed 30½ ounces today, one and one-half ounces more than she did at birth, and doctors said her color and general condition caused them to believe she would continue to show progress.

The baby will be kept in an incubator until she weighs four or five pounds, which, doctors estimated, might take two or three more months.

Romeo, Juliet Reported Wed In No. Conway

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—In a quiet country hamlet—far, far from New York's turmoil—Eileen "Juliet" Herrick and George "Romeo" Lowther, 3d, found peace today and the setting for their often-interrupted wedding plans.

EILEEN HERRICK
Happy at Last

At long last there was none to say "no" to New York's 20th century lovers, although Eileen's dad very definitely was not going to give her away.

While a clergyman and witnesses gathered for the ceremony in their hidden retreat, the bride's father, Socialite Walter P. Herrick, was angrily complaining to police that his daughter was "being held against her will."

This was the same charge which young Lowther hollered so long and loud both in the courts and in the press.

Since father couldn't tell them just where Eileen was being held, New York police were properly sympathetic, but not exactly overactive.

But aside from this complaint, both mother and dad seemed pretty

BULLETINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (INS)—The New York Journal-American today said Eileen Herrick and George Lowther, III, were married today at North Conway, N. H. The ceremony was performed, the story added, by the Rev. Dr. Raymond H. Phelts of the Congregational Church at North Conway.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Jan. 5 (AP)—A man and woman identified from photographs by Municipal Airport Manager Jack Tweed as Eileen Herrick and George Lowther, New York's Romeo and Juliet eloping couple, arrived by taxi at the airport early today and took off in a private airplane without announcing their destination.

FAIRBANKS WILLS MILLION TO WIDOW

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—Douglas Fairbanks left half of his estate to his widow, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley, it was disclosed when his will was filed for probate in surrogates court today.

He stipulated, however, that her share should not exceed $1,000,000.

The movie actor, former husband of Mary Pickford, died in Santa Monica, Cal., Dec. 12.

A considerable part of his fortune was invested in United Artists, a movie-producing group in which Miss Pickford, now the wife of Actor Buddy Rogers, is a partner.

To his son, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., the athletic movie hero left 12-40ths of his property, the total not to exceed $600,000.

Fairbanks specified that his total bequests to his wife, son, "brothers and other relatives" should not exceed $2,000,000.

The will, which covered 13 typewritten pages, named as executors the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, which filed the document, and the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Ass'n of Los Angeles.

The will was executed on Nov. 2, 1936, shortly after Fairbanks married Lady Ashley. There were no codicils or revisions.

Marion Talley Gets Daughter

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (INS)—Former opera singer Marion Talley Eckstrom today had been awarded custody of her four-year-old daughter Susan, in a decision of the State Appeals Court, upholding a similar order by the State Supreme Court.

Miss Talley and her husband, Adolf G. Eskstrom, a New York singing teacher, have been separated for three years.

In her original action for custody, Miss Talley charged that her husband was "morally and financially unfit" to care for Susan and claimed that Eckstrom's interest in the child was "selfish and mercenary."

Honeymoon in West

ON HONEYMOON today were June Travis, movie starlet, shown here, and Fred M. Friedlob, Chicago manufacturer, after surprise elopement to Crown Point, Ind. They were wed by justice of the peace.

Missing Wife Appears, Then Leaves Again

Pretty Mrs. Helen Green, for whom a frantic husband with an ailing baby had asked police to search, returned to her former Cambridge boarding house, then disappeared again, the landlady said today.

Mrs. Catherine Clayton, boarding house owner at 127 Chestnut st., Cambridge, said the young wife returned for her clothes last night and told her:

"I have a better job and I'm taking a room with a girl close to my new work."

The husband, Theodore, has been separated from her four months, and now lives with his mother in Broadway, South Boston.

Green, who said he "still loves" his wife, met her at the boarding house Wednesday and made an appointment to meet her the following day, he said.

When she failed to appear, he appealed to police.

Saltonstall Expects To Go Out Next Week

Gov. Saltonstall, still confined to his home with a severe cold, expects to return to his desk "sometime next week," his office reported today.

Old Mare Toots Lost And Found Again

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5 (AP)—A 25-year-old mare with a police record and the name Toots ambled up to the 20th st. headquarters last night.

Policemen, who had often gone out of their way to find the rambling animal, filled a bag of oats and notified Moe Eckelstein. Eckelstein, Toots' owner, said coal haulers seldom brought her back to the stable after they rented her.

'Death So Permanent' Safety Drive Slogan

CALGARY, Alberta, Jan. 5 (AP)—"Death is so permanent."

This slogan was emblazoned on big signboards in Calgary today as the city's public safety campaign began. Atop the signboards are four red-bordered white flags which will be kept flying until someone in Calgary dies in a traffic accident. Then the flags will be changed to black banners for a day.

N. Y. Labor Chiefs Vote Russian Boycott

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (INS)—New York American Federation of Labor leaders today voted unanimously to impose a strict boycott against all Russian goods and bitterly condemned the Soviet invasion of Finland.

WOMAN'S BODY IS STUFFED IN TRUNK

CHICAGO, Jan. 5 (AP)—The body of a woman about 45 years old, the face and head showing signs of a beating, was found wedged in a trunk today in a South Side alley.

The body had been pressed into the trunk with the legs drawn up to the chest. The face was bruised and discolored.

Policeman Verner Johnson said the body appeared to be fully clothed and that the garments were of better than ordinary quality. One foot was protruding from the trunk. The leg appeared to have been broken when the body was crammed into the trunk.

The trunk itself was relatively new but inexpensive, and was partly wrapped in an old blanket. It was discovered by a junkman passing through the alley.

The junkman, Frank Robinson, a Negro, started to drag the trunk down the alley, intending to take it home, but its weight made him curious. He opened the lid to examine his find.

The body was clad in a black crepe dress, white underskirt, black shoes, silk stockings and a brown coat with an apparently inexpensive fur cape. A blue kimona was wrapped around the head.

Policemen made only a cursory examination, pending arrival of coroner's aides. There was a scalp wound near the left temple and deep bruises under each eye.

Snow Heads Toward Hub

Snow, sweeping eastward from the Great Lakes region, is expected in Boston late today, as the weather continues cloudy and cold.

New York State and Pennsylvania had flurries today, and light snow squalls were reported throughout the Middle West.

A below-zero wave in the far West may have its effects in the East in a few days, but present indications are that the temperatures will remain at present levels.

Mt. Washington, N. H., the highest peak in New England, reported a 99-mile hurricane at zero temperature during the night.

The wind decreased today to a 44-miles-an-hour northwest gale.

An official 10 below zero temperature was reported at Northfield, Vt., and an unofficial 20 below zero at Lancaster, N. H.

PROVIDENCE SCHOOL FIRE BLAMED ON 'WASTED FUNDS'

By JAMES F. McENANEY

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 5—Charges of wasted funds, lack of proper fire alarm systems and a scurry of officials to correct conditions, were today's aftermath of yesterday's near-disastrous fire in the Point st. grammar school.

Alderman John E. Duggan charged that 24 schools in this city were without auxiliary fire alarm systems.

He introduced an order at the meeting of the aldermen demanding the school committee immediately inspect all school heating systems.

RUSH FIRE ALARMS

He revealed that many of them needed repair and that last week pupils at the Oxford st. grammar school were out of classes because the heating system broke down.

Dr. James L. Hanley, school superintendent, said specifications for installing auxiliary fire alarms were already being drawn.

He issued orders that all school principals conduct frequent fire drills, after reports had reached him that in some schools there had been laxity in ordering such drills.

But for the fact that the children at the Point st. school had been well drilled, many might have lost their lives yesterday.

Many of them, as it was, escaped by seconds when the 66-year-old building became a raging inferno.

Mayor John F. Collins today accused the school committee of using funds for "fads" instead of for making schools safe and began an investigation aimed to survey every school building in the city.

ORDERS CITY-WIDE PROBE

Acting as chairman of the fire and police bureaus he called a meeting to open a city-wide inquiry.

"The fire at the Point st. school was really no surprise to me," said the mayor. "I have been talking about fixing up school buildings and making them safe ever since I took office. But the school committee did not seem to heed me.

"The school committee has been talking about fads and frills in the school system instead of putting the funds to a better use.

"I am directing the commissioner of public buildings, Joseph A. Sullivan, to make an immediate survey of all non-fireproof and old school buildings in the city so that parents may be guaranteed complete safety for their children.

"If the survey discloses the necessity of spending public funds to make old buildings safe I shall ask the city council to make available those funds.

"I shall also direct the commissioner of public buildings to co-operate with the school authorities in pressing the survey."

SCHOOLS GET $4,000,000

Mayor Collins added that about 35 per cent of the city's revenue, or nearly $4,000,000, is appropriated annually to the school committee.

He said that under the Strayer Act, which completely divorces the mayor and city council from the school committee, the city administration is powerless to dictate to committee.

He charged that every suggestion he had made for safety in the schools had been ignored by the school committee. From a local hospital, where she was about to undergo an operation, Mrs. Mary E. Fogarty, newly-elected member of the school committee, announced support of the mayor's survey program.

She is committeewoman from the district in which the fire occurred.

BRADY ANSWERS MAYOR

Mayor Collins declared that had the school committee been "co-operative" it could have applied through him for WPA funds with which to make necessary school repairs.

Francis J. Brady, chairman of the school committee, answered the mayor's charges by stating that a meeting of his committee had been called for Monday night, but that all school buildings in use were "in good condition."

"Although we have several old buildings, they are safe," he asserted. "During the last 15 years we have been following an extensive program of school building and already have abandoned 30 old buildings."

Brady said he could not imagine what caused the Point st. school fire.

DOWD CLUES SPAN TWO CONTINENTS

Ex-Sheriff John F. Dowd was placed in a dozen hide-outs in both the Americas today, with only one thing dead certain—he was not in the custody of those who seek his arrest.

From sources said to be reliable, the runaway ex-sheriff was given a sunny spot beneath the swaying palms of South America and, at the same time, said to be shivering in Nova Scotia's wintry blasts.

In opinions which read like travel bureau advertising, Dowd was pictured in such delightful spots as Miami, New Orleans and Mexico City, while authorities also were told he might well be in Ohio.

These advices—most of them apparently given in good faith—came from friends of the Dowd family and politicians and friends who have known the fugitive well.

And while one well known politician and attorney said Dowd undoubtedly was in Bolivia—to escape any extradition attempt — there were still many who "are positive" Johnny is not far from home and will soon give himself up.

OTHER ANGLES

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley considered the tip that Dowd might be in Sandusky, O., as reliable as any and made the move which converged a dozen G-men on that western city.

Belief that Sandusky, or a neighboring town, might be the hide-away spot came with positive identification by a witness of Mrs. Dowd as a woman he saw board a train near that point last Saturday.

The witness identified Mrs. Dowd from a picture and said she took a seat on the same train on which he came from Chicago. He said his attention was attracted to her often because she appeared upset and occasionally cried during the trip.

G-men who were given the assignment to Sandusky declared their travels in search for Dowd also have carried them to Helena, Mont.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle declared that he knew for a fact that Dowd had visited in Nova Scotia, at the same time discounting a report which placed him in Mexico.

MRS. DOWD MUM

Meanwhile, where Mrs. Dowd was and whether or not she was with her husband during six weeks of journey away from home was still her secret. Her attorney, Garrett Barry, notified Dist. Atty. Foley that his client still was too distraught to be interviewed.

The politician's story that Dowd was in Bolivia was largely conjecture but had a "certain ring." This man declared that Dowd had consulted a New York attorney, versed in international law, and had learned what countries there were in South America from which a fugitive could not be returned for such an alleged offense as his.

It was also reported that Dowd had known at least two Boston men who had sought—and gained—such a haven in Bolivia.

"Johnny knew officials who had ducked out there in the past," this informant said, "and it's my guess that he's there right now having a fine time.

"It is my understanding that a former Boston police commissioner who absconded with some funds went to Bolivia and stayed there safely until he died."

NOT IN ALL PLACES

Of one thing, authorities were sure. John F. Dowd is not in all the places that he "definitely" has been seen, "reported" to be or "thought" to be.

Despite the stream of conflicting information, police officials still feel that Dowd will surrender when he feels conditions are suitable.

Urges Defense Tax On Public Securities

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (INS)—Legislation for reciprocal taxation of federal and state securities was offered today as an answer to President Roosevelt's budget demand for $460,000,000 in new taxes to meet increased defense needs.

The suggestion came from Sen. Brown (D.), of Michigan, chairman of a special Senate finance subcommittee studying the question of public security taxation. He estimated removal of the tax exemption from governmental and state securities would yield nearly $500,000,000 yearly—more than enough to pay the increased defense bill.

Brown said his special subcommittee would introduce a bill providing for removal of the tax exemption privilege. Backed by the Administration, he sponsored the reciprocal federal-state salary tax bill passed at the last regular session of Congress.

"The proposed legislation," Brown said, "will not only result in tax justice, but in itself would be a material factor in the reduction of the public debt."

This move to meet the President's demands came as House Democratic chiefs showed little interest in the proposal of Chairman Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, for a joint House-Senate Committee to study the new $8,424,000,000 budget for 60 days and draft a plan for carrying it out.

Plea for Presidential Power Runs Into Storm

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—A blast of criticism indicated today that the Navy's recommendation to give the President peacetime emergency power to commandeer factories for naval construction faced formidable opposition in Congress.

Even long-time supporters of the Administration, such as Sen. Minton of Indiana, the Democratic whip, joined in bi-partisan opposition to the proposal, made by Secretary Edison in a letter to Speaker Bankhead.

The proposal, which would broaden the powers now delegated to the President only in wartime, was being widely discussed as the administration pushed ahead with its defense program.

Rep. Bates (R.) of Massachusetts, a member of the House naval affairs committee, declared the proposal "will create a feeling of uneasiness in the nation."

He predicted the idea would meet "considerable opposition," both in the navy committee and on the House floor.

"We ought not to extend the emergency powers of the President to commandeer private property in peace times," Bates said in an interview. "This would permit the President to take over factories. There certainly is no necessity for such action."

Senate Republicans Chart Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP) — Senate Republicans, caucusing for the first time in the new Congress, appeared today to be in general agreement on a program of active opposition to extending the reciprocal trade treaty act and a "watchful waiting" attitude on defense appropriations.

Sen. McNary of Oregon, who called the minority party members together, said he thought the Republicans as a whole were opposed to enactment of new taxes, believing that savings in regular government expenditures could be combined with a careful pruning of the defense program to obviate the necessity of raising additional funds.

Kennedy Plans Longer U. S. Visit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (INS)—Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Great Britain, in this country on leave, has advised friends here he may not return to his post for another sixty days—certainly not for another month.

Kennedy told his friends his physician had advised him to rest for at least a month more. When he returned to the United States for Christmas he had not expected to be here more than two or three weeks. Kennedy is now resting at his home in Palm Beach, Fla.

The ambassador, his close friends reported today, is pessimistic concerning the chances for a speedy end to the war in Europe, and fears it may be a long exhausting conflict.

Codfish Go Smart; Keep Own Books

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Charles E. Jackson, acting commissioner of fisheries, became emeshed today in the piscatorial riddle—how smart is the codfish?

Back in 1938, Jackson, then deputy comisioner, praised the cod for its taste, many uses, the way it swims and looks, but said he had netted evidence that the cod was beautiful but dumb.

New Englanders flew into a finny dungeon.

FISH HAS NOTEBOOK

Red around the gills from indignation at the slur on the mentality of the cod, whose popularity in New England is challenged only by Boston baked beans, Rhode Island Red chickens, Vermont maple syrup, Maine potatoes, New Hampshire scenery and the Connecticut nutmeg, they wrote Jackson.

"They wrote eloquently," said the acting commissioner, "but they brought forth no evidence until today."

This came from C. J. O'Neill of Milton, Mass.:

"Now," said O'Neill, "we have proof that the cod is the intelligentsia of all fish."

A Massacrusetts trawler, O'Neill explained, recently hauled up a strange looking cod. When the fish was opened, inside it was something stranger still.

"The cod," said O'Neill, "contained a regulation size scholar's notebook complete with notes and all."

MAY BE HARVARD COD

O'Neill, a New England industrial official, said the only explanation was that the cod was a fugitive from the laboratories of W. C. Herrington who does cod experiments at Harvard College.

"However," O'Neill concluded, "this proves beyond doubt the superior mental abilities of our fish."

Jackson admits that at first glance it appears that O'Neill has made a point.

"I won't be fully convinced," he said, however, "until I learn what sort of notes were in the notebook. That will make all the difference."

Father, 77, Wins Over Daughter

SALEM, Jan. 5—The fight to have his daughter removed as conservator of his $7000 estate was won in probate court today by James A. Fuller, 77, of Amesbury, retired hotel man.

Judge John A. Costello removed Miss Mary Fuller as her father's conservator. She was appointed last September and her father charged she had been a source of trouble ever since.

He said he was able to handle his own finances and his physical well-being was amply cared for by Mrs. Daisy Hurlburt, a nurse who has attended him for some time.

Hub Fish Handlers May Delay Strike

The threat of a strike of fish handlers at the Fish Pier against a ruling of the food division of the Board of Health still was in the air today.

Either operations at the pier will be tied up Monday by disgruntled "lumpers," it was indicated, or the strike held in abeyance until March 15, when their agreement with fishing boat owners expires. The Board of Health has ruled that fish cannot be unloaded from vessels except by hand or with a one-tine fork.

HUMBERT WOLFE DIES

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Humbert Wolfe, deputy secretary of the ministry of labor and the author of a number of volumes of poetry and prose, died today on his 54th birthday.

Lumber Plant Swept In Meredith, N.H. Fire

MEREDITH, N. H., Jan. 5 (AP)—After a five-hour battle, firemen brought under control today a blaze that destroyed the Prescott Lumber Co. warehouse.

HURT IN TRUCK CRASH

WOBURN, Jan. 5—Although he was pinned in the cab of a coal truck which had skidded into a lamp post and tipped over in Main st., Ralph A. Porter, the driver, escaped serious injury today.

Unity's Mind Fails; Ignorant of Injury

LONDON, Jan. 5 (INS)—The Hon. Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford, once the "blonde Nordic Goddess" to Adolf Hitler, is suffering from amnesia, during spasms of which she cannot remember how she was injured, it was disclosed today.

Following her return on a stretcher today to her ancestral English home at High Wycombe from Germany, the Daily Express published a brief interview between a reporter and the mysterious ailing girl in which she said she was glad to be back home again, though she still sympathized with Germany's cause.

Before talking with Miss Freeman-Mitford, who revealed she spent four months in a Munich Hospital but does not know what ails her, the reporter was warned by her father, Lord Redesdale, not to ask questions about her injury or conditions in Germany.

MEMORY IS UNCERTAIN

"She does not know she is injured. She cannot remember. She suffers from loss of memory. Sometimes she will talk quite well and at other times she relapses," her father said.

A pink bed-jacket over her shoulders as she lay on her stretcher, the 25-year-old English noblewoman greeted the reporter with a faint, pathetic smile.

Asked if she had a good journey, Unity replied:

"Yes, thank you. An excellent journey. I am glad to be on English soil again, even if I am not on your side.

"I do not remember anything of what has happened. You see, I have been in the hospital for nearly four months. They were wonderful to me over there. I had every attention.

"Funny thing, I do not know what has been wrong with me. Isn't that funny?"

She smiled wanly, repeating:

"I am so glad to be back. Everyone has been most kind. I had a wonderful German woman who nursed me."

It was the first and only chat anyone was permitted to have with Unity after she arrived at Folkestone, from where she was taken in an ambulance to High Wycombe, the Buckinghamshire estate of her father.

The country home's rustic serenity enfolded the disillusioned girl as she reached the end of her tempestuous road. She was under the care of an eminent British surgeon, who probed her neck wound to determine whether an operation would be safe. A police guard shielded her from prying intrusion.

WON'T TELL FOR MONEY

The mystery that cloaks the mishap she met last August in a Munich park, reputedly after quarreling with Hitler, remained as thick as the manorial silence enveloping the parental home to which she returned from her ill-starred sojourn in the Naziland she once ardently loved. Her father, bearer of one of England's oldest names, underscored the determined secrecy by revealing:

"Unity has been offered 5000 pounds ($25,000) for a statement, but would not accept 25,000 pounds ($125,000). We've got her home now and that's all that matters."

Hours before Unity's special ambulance drew up to the gates of High Wycombe in mid-afternoon a considerable crowd of villagers and farmers already had gathered along the road to catch a glimpse of the stricken girl about whose strange doings they had read so much in their newspapers.

Mystery Over New Loan by British

LONDON, Jan. 5 (INS)—Financial experts regard as highly significant an entry in the latest weekly return of the Bank of England showing an increase of $50,000,000 in an unidentified item listed under the heading, "other accounts," the Daily Express said today.

This has aroused speculation over whether the item represents a British loan to Finland or possibly some other country. Official circles declined to comment.

Anti-IRA Measure Becomes Eire Law

DUBLIN, Jan. 5 (INS)—The new "offenses against the state" bill, aimed to stamp out Irish Republican Army activities, became the law of Eire today when it was signed by President Douglas Hyde.

The Senate last night passed the measure by a vote of 62 to 7. Earlier it had been approved by the lower house, 82 to 9.

Boy Stole $100 'To Play Santa'

A 17-year-old Hyde Park boy played "Santa Claus" for the kids in his neighborhood with money he stole Christmas eve, he told police in the lineup today.

The boy, facing court on charges of burglarizing Juliet Nelson's beauty parlor, Fairmount ave., Hyde Park, said he "treated the kids" after purchasing the following with the stolen $100:

A revolver "for target practice," a rifle, boots, three pairs of skates, hunting knife, wrist watch and a cigarette case.

5 Wives, Childless Hubby Win Decrees

Five wives and a husband who charged his wife refused to have children won freedom in Suffolk Probate Court today where Judge John V. Mahoney granted them divorces.

Bernard L. Carlson hit her in an argument over money, Mrs. Greta A. Carlson of Medford testified. The next day, when she told him she could not stand his hitting her, he punched her again, she testified. Se was given custody of their son, John V. Carlson, and $8 a week for support.

One of the youngest wives ever to ask a divorce was Ruth L. Tryder of Bartlett st., Charlestown, a child of 16 when she wed Robert Tryder of Malden in 1937.

He slapped her, bit her on the leg and threatened to run into her with an automobile, she testified.

His cruelties started a few days after their marriage while they were living at her father's home, she added.

STRAWBERRY BLONDE

Her husband boasted that he had entertained a "strawberry blonde" while she was working to support him, Mrs. Beatrice O'Rawe of Dorchester told the court. She had come home from work to find powder traces and a girl's dress button in their home, she said.

Her husband, Luke F. O'Rawe, now of parts unknown, used to boast to her of his conquests, she said. She said he never held a job for more than two or three weeks at a time and that she had to work for him from the time they were married.

The final straw, she said, was when she bought him a car so that he could use it to find work. Instead he used it to entertain other women, she charged.

Nine years ago today, Mrs. Florence Schiff of Pearl st., Brookline, told Judge Mahoney, she was on her honeymoon with Bernard L. Schiff, Dorchester musician. In 1938 he threw a face cloth at her, she threw it back and he blacked both of her eyes, she testified. They separated, but were reconciled. Last September, she said, he came home intoxicated and punched her. She was given custody of two children, Irving and Suzanne.

WANTED 2 SUPPERS

Helen E. O'Neill of Hancock st., Dorchester, said her husband, James, a navyyard workman, was drunk most of the time. She said on one occasion he came home drunk at midnight and demanded supper. She got it for him. When he had finished he demanded his supper all over again, she charged.

Troy M. Myers of Endicott ave., Beachmont, was the sole husband granted a divorce.

He said his wife, Eleanor, hated children and refused to have any. She told a neighbor they were "nasty little things," Myers told the court.

MYSTERY PARLEY IN DOG PROBE

Mystery crept into the federal probe of activities at the Dighton dog track today when Asst. U. S. Atty. Henry M. Leen interrupted the extraordinary grand jury's investigation to confer with a number of lawyers and tax collectors in his office.

Meanwhile, waiting to go back into the grand jrry room, were Arthur and Charles McQuiston, Waltham brothers said to have been employed at the track, and Thomas J. Flynn of Adams st., Dorchester, reported to be a stockholder.

During the interruption in the Dighton probe, Asst. U. S. Atty. William T. McCarthy had the grand jury hear testimony in several narcotic cases.

Approximately 50 more witnesses remain to be heard in the Dighton probe, regarding which Prosecutor Leen said yesterday that "we intend to get the whole truth on dog racing no matter how long it takes."

Two of the witnesses waiting to be called are women, both of whom are expected to shed light on the government's charges on income tax evasion.

One of the two women witnesses is expected to be Antoinette "Toni" Cavetta, secretary to Edward J. O'Hare, attorney and well-known sporting figure, who was slain by gangsters in Chicago last November.

Following yesterday's session, the federal prosecutor went into conference in his private office with Charles Connors, head of the State Racing Commission. The subject of the conference was not disclosed.

U. S. TO OPEN BOSTON 'ISM' PROBE

With his confirmation as Supreme Court Justice virtually assured, Attorney General Frank Murphy today predicted in a Washington interview that indictments would be returned within a few days against Boston Communists and other "isms" leaders.

"There will be some very interesting developments in Boston, as well as other cities," the new appointee to the High Court announced.

"We expect to return indictments against Boston Communists, anti-Semitic organizations and many foolish, intolerant people of the type who have inflamed Europe."

It was learned here that the federal grand jury has been given volumes of testimony and evidence heard in the legislative probe of "isms" last spring, as well as information gathered by federal agents over a period of many months.

Communists, Nazis and Fascists were named in the sweeping probe made of subversive activities in Massachusetts.

Fall River Marine Dead in Truck Crash

FALL RIVER, Jan. 5—Harold J. DesJardines, 22, of this city, a private in the United States Marine Corps and a fellow private, Charles H. Harbert, 20, of Fairmount, W. Va., were killed in a crash at Quantico, Va., according to word received here today.

It was learned that a military truck in which they were riding sideswiped a telephone repair truck.

Murphy Choice Gives F. D. R. Court Control

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Elevation of Frank Murphy to the Supreme Court will give Roosevelt appointees majority control of the tribunal for possibly two decades, barring deaths, resignations or removals.

Nomination of the 46-year-old attorney-general yesterday as Mr. Roosevelt's fifth appointee on the nine-man court may well imprint the New Deal hallmark on its opinions for many years after the President's own retirement from office.

Discussing Roosevelt's lower court appointments, Murphy himself said that "for years the country will watch the work and receive the benefits of the wisdom of these men of learning and integrity."

CONFIRMATION SEEN

Senate comment indicated that Murphy would be confirmed promptly. He will be the second youngest member of the court. The oldest Roosevelt appointee is Felix Frankfurter, 57, who would serve 20 years more if he remains until he is as old as Chief Justice Hughes and Justice McReynolds.

The youngest is William O. Douglas, 41. Should he remain on the bench only until reaching the average age of the four non-Roosevelt appointees, he would still be serving 30 years from now.

Besides comparative youth, Murphy shares with three other Roosevelt appointees a background of government service. He has been mayor of Detroit, commissioner to the Philippines, governor of Michigan and attorney general.

Like Justice McReynolds, Murphy is a bachelor. Where McReynolds is outspoken and sometimes abrupt, Murphy follows a private precept. "Speak softly and hit hard."

Like Chief Justice Hughes, Murphy is a churchman. Hughes is a Baptist, Murphy a devout Catholic, once called a "lay bishop" by the late Cardinal Mundelein.

GIVE UP POLITICS

In the last 30 years, he has read 15 times a Bible his mother gave him a Bible so worn that it has to be kept rolled in a towel.

Although he enjoyed stumping the countryside in his campaigns, Murphy said yesterday that he would give up politics after joining the court.

To succeed Murphy as attorney general, Mr. Roosevelt nominated Robert H. Jackson, who has been solicitor general.

Prompt Senate approval appeared in store likewise for the New Yorker, who, without benefit of a college degree, earned a reputation as the "No. 1 Lawyer in Government."

Fear Suspect Will Be Lynched

MEADVILLE, Miss., Jan. 5 (AP)—More than 100 Mississippi farmers and 35 National Guardsmen today hunted a Negro killer-suspect in the dense Homochitto National Forest near here.

Adjt.-Gen. John A. O'Keefe directed the guardsmen, ordered out by Gov. Hugh White, after fear was expressed that a mob might lynch the Negro, known only as "Red, if he were captured.

Farmers from miles around joined in the hunt. They carried a variety of weapons, including shotguns, rifles and pistols.

"Red" and another Negro named "Oklahoma" were sought for the killing last Monday night of Hillard Hall, 21, and the slight wounding of Constable Philip Shell and his brother, J. W. Shell.

Predict Prosperity Ahead for N. E. in '40

Nothing but prosperity looms on the New England business horizon for 1940, according to industrial leaders here for the first annual Sales Management Conference and the 18th annual Sales Rally at the Hotel Statler.

The conference, sponsored by the Boston Chamber of Commerce, will continue through tomorrow.

"Unless all signs fail, the industries of New England are in for a period of substantial recovery and prosperity," said Ralph J. Cordiner, president of Schick Dry Shaver, Inc., of Stamford, Ct., in a prepared address.

In his own company, Cordiner said, sales have increased 28 per cent and employment 460 per cent in the last four months.

"Everywhere throughout this historic area we can see plain evidences of a business uplift, not due to the wars raging in other lands but a rapidly increasing domestic trade due to confidence on the part of New England business men," he added.

Harry G. Moock, vice-president of the Plymouth Motor Corporation outlined "bright prospects for an exceptional first quarter in the automobile industry," asserting that New England business of every kind is affected by increased production of automobiles scheduled for January, February and March.

Production, he said, may run 16 per cent ahead of the first quarter of 1939, adding that "corresponding activity is bound to follow in every one of the 48 states."

"More textiles and other products of every kind are needed in greater amount than ever before for this year's bigger and better automobiles," he explained.

Taxi Men Hit 'Stagger' Plan

Independent taxicab drivers today strongly protested Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty's "stagger system" for public taxicabs, charging they were treated unfairly.

The plan, to go into effect Feb. 1, would reduce from 1300 to 1000 the number of taxis operating on Boston streets on week days.

Under the new plan, each licensed cab will bear a colored medallion, denoting the day it is to be withdrawn from operation for cleaning and repairing. Cabs bearing red medallions will be taken out of operation on Monday, those with yellow on Tuesday, blue on Wednesday, green on Thursday and white on Friday.

Timilty's announcement was severely criticised at once in a statement by Abraham Miller, president of the ITOA.

"ITOA operators and owners will starve to death under the new system," he said. "Most of the ITOA cabs do not work on Sundays. Now they will have to take another day off during the week."

HUNT KIN OF SLAIN WIFE

In their efforts to solve a new murder mystery at Daytona Beach, Florida, officials today sought relatives in Massachusetts of Mrs. Ethel Snead Wigington, 34, who was slain near the southern resort city on New Year's Day.

The body of the woman was found in an auto parked in a jungle lane, half way between Daytona Beach and Deland, Fla. Curious woodsmen, who passed the machine several times previously, made the gruesome discovery.

Mrs. Wigington, known as a striking brunette beauty, was shot twice and stabbed four times. She apparently died after a violent struggle, during which she tore a stick pin from the clothing of her assailant.

It was learned that the woman had told friends she was born in Middleboro, Mass., and had visited frequently in Boston, Brockton and Cape Cod.

Locked in Room Of Live Steam

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP) Six armed men locked seven silk company employes in a room charged with live steam last night and made off with $15,000 in silk—but only after the superintendent had risked his life to plead that the steam be turned off.

Several of the employes of the Supreme Skein Dying Co., of Brooklyn, had dropped under the intense heat when the superintendent, Louis Wachter, burst from the chamber shouting:

"For God's sake let me turn off the steam or we'll all die. The temperature is 120 degrees in there now and getting hotter."

"Okay," one of the men grunted. "Turn off the steam—and get back in there quick."

Retailing Career For Students Urged

Henry August, general manager of the Bell Shops, an organization of women specialty shops in New England, today, in an address, advised the Boston University class in vocational guidance to start early for a career in retailing.

"Get a part-time job if you can," August said. "Study the advertising of respective stores, their displays and merchandising methods, and apply them to your lectures and textbooks."

Cold Wave Delays Florida Air Race

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5 (AP)—Icy conditions over Georgia and a low ceiling in Florida caused a day's postponement of the St. Louis to Miami flight in the Bernarr MacFadden trophy race.

Robert Foster of St. Louis, Mrs. Arlene Davis of Cleveland and Homer C. Rankin of Wichita, Kan., were ready to take off despite 9-degree below-zero weather, when reports of the adverse flying conditions in the South were received.

Mickey Rooney Barred at Races!

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 5 (AP)—Mickey Rooney, the screen's current No. 1 box office attraction, is too young to attend the horse races in Florida.

He went to Tropical Park, while vacationing at Miami Beach, but was barred because a state law prohibits minors at race tracks.

Mickey is 19.

Steam Shovel Routs Slumber

Industry and ambition are qualities to be admired, but not when a steam shovel operator starts rehearsing for the day's work before daybreak.

So today irate residents of the Hackensack and Sherrin rds. section of Brookline showered police with complaints that their slumbers were being disturbed by an unearthly racket.

Police went to the scene and found the steam shovel operator warming up. He told them he was waiting for a truck to tow him to the job at the Mission Hill Housing Project and was just practising to get warm. The noise was quieted

Straus, Macy Head, Gravely Ill in West

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 5 (INS)—Percy S. Straus, president of the R. H. Macy Co. of New York city, ill of a nervous disorder for a month, today suffered a serious relapse.

Members of his family arrived from New York to be at his bedside at a desert resort near Phoenix.

Everett Family Asks Ban on Cooing Doves

The cooing of pigeons, supposed to be the sweetest of sounds, brought no joy to Mrs. Caterina Leno of Floyd st., Everett, or to her two pretty daughters.

So today Judge Francis J. Good of Middlesex Superior Court has under advisement Mrs. Leno's plea that a neighbor, Benjamin W. Vaughan, be enjoined from keeping pigeons.

Mrs. Leno; her daughter, Josephine, and another daughter, Margaret, went to court to testify that Vaughan's cooing pigeons added no soft romantic touch to their lives last summer.

"We have a grape arbor behind the house," Margaret said, "and every time we'd sit in it the pigeons from the Vaughan cote next door would disturb us so much we'd have to go inside the house."

much resigned to the fact that they would have a new son-in-law momentarily.

"I guess it's all over now," they sighed wearily.

In much better spirits—almost triumphant, was Eli Johnson, Lowther's attorney.

He was chock full of announcements as happy as if he were the bridegroom himself.

"They got away by fast auto, fast train an' fast plane," he confided in explaining how Silvia sauntered away from her parents' home on the rise she was taking her dog for a walk.

"They are properly chaperoned," he announced in an afterthought. "I expect to hear about the wedding at any moment. I predict they will be very happy always."

Johnson said the sweethearts, beside themselves with happiness, bade him adieu with this pronouncement.

"We are very happy that this is ending in marriage."

Police also said that Herrick expressed displeasure over the belief that the family dog "was roaming the streets of New York."

"That is nonsense," said Johnson, "and what's more, the dog is very safely tucked away, the two sweethearts are together, and that they are very properly chaperoned."

Three minutes after the beauteous brunette left her home, a taxicab was seen speeding her across town to "the apartment of a confidante."

There, said Johnson, Lowther met her—the first private meeting in three months—full of happiness and honeymoon plans, and the two left again immediately.

HUB DRIVES FOR $4,625,000 COMMUNITY FUND GOAL

The goal of Boston's Community Fund Campaign for 1940 is $4,625,000.

This is $125,000 more than has ever been raised before here in the drive to aid hospitals, health units and social welfare agencies.

The figure was announced at a preliminary gifts dinner at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, attended by more than 1000 men and women. Among them were many leaders of business, the professions distinguished clergy and representatives of various groups and agencies. Several agencies are participating in the fund drive for the first time.

Francis C. Gray, general chairman, announcing the goal, said the money needed is "not for frills or expansion."

"It is to keep open the doors from which come health, happiness and encouragement to men and women and boys and girls—thousands and thousands of them," he added.

NO BLACKOUT HERE

Chairman Gray reminded his hearers that no one came to the dinner in a blackout and the lights of Copley sq. were undimmed. No one had to wear gas masks and airplanes overhead were on friendly business. This fact of "where we are and as we are" free of war and its anxieties should stimulate people into giving more than ever, as a thank offering, he said.

Viewed in a practical way, he said, what the money raised last year represented was 300,000 visits to homes in Greater Boston by nurses; 1,000,000 out-patients cared for and 60,000 patients in the hospitals; sustaining help brought to 125,000 families by welfare agencies.

Chairman Gray announced that 60 leaders, men and women, have increased their contributions by an average of over 16 per cent and many have made their second, third or fourth increase in as many years.

Dr. Lewis Perry, principal of Phillips Exeter Academy, termed the Community Fund way "the democratic way," and said it unites various communities as nothing else can.

"Seven million boys and girls in the United States depend on public charity for their maintenance," he said.

CENTRAL EFFORT BEST

Charles Francis Adams, president of the Community Federation of Boston, said Boston had proved, as have 500 other cities, that central financing is the best.

"These great joint efforts are essential to provide, not soft philanthropies, but what a decent community must have. Our gifts come from our hearts, but really are a fixed charge that each of us must provide for in our scale of living and not lightly regard as something to toss to us if there happen to be spare pennies."

Among those at the head table were Mayor Tobin, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, Rt. Rev. Mgr. Robert P. Barry, director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau; Rt. Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, Episcopal Bishop of Massachusetts; Louis Kirstein, president of the Associated Jewish Charities; Bishop Emeritus William Lawrence and general chairmen of past campaigns.

TEMPLE MEETING TONIGHT

The Brookline-Brighton-Newton Zionist District will hold a combined meeting with Temple Ohabei Shalom at Ohabei Shalom Temple, 1187 Beacon st., Brookline, tonight at 8 o'clock, with Dr. Ludwig Lewisohn as principal speaker.

Those Isms Wasms Now

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Investigating committees find that isms are going underground like worms in the winter.

The best paragraph of the present conflict was written by a London editor the day after England went to war. He said, "The isms are wasms now."

Our isms are rapidly becoming wasms because fanaticism and toadstools grow best in the damp and the dark. When the light is turned on they scurry back into the cracked walls.

How's Your I. Q., Folks? Prof. Quiz Is in Town

By PEGGY DOYLE

Don't look now, but what color tie is George Washington wearing on a folding dollar?

The right answer to this one would have won you three clanking ironmen at yesterday's press party-quiz hour at the Hotel Statler conducted the omniscient Dr. I. Q., of radio fame.

The remarkable radio know-it-all is to appear on the Metropolitan stage next Monday evening for the first of a series of personal appearance broadcasts in the course of which he will exchange for knowledge 700 silver dollars weekly.

The right answer? White, you goose! And now how about answering these brain teasers:

If Massachusetts has two Senators how many does Rhode Island have?

Why do doctors advise gas or ether for tonsorial operations?

Are there more men married each year or more women?

Do your pronounce the capital of Kentucky Lou-is-ville or Lou-ee-ville?

Does Western Front refer to France or Germany?

But why spoil your fun next Monday evening by anticipating your correct (?) answers, bright readers—the Boston American being a "paper for people who think."

And so, go knit your brows and unkink your brain. And here's hoping you know all the answers Monday night, when, from 9 to 9:30, Dr. I. Q. will test your alertness from the Metropolitan stage over an NBC coast-to-coast hookup of 59 stations.

Incidentally, Dr. I. Q., who is Lew Valentine to his folks, started the radio quiz hour in 1933, four and a half years before Clifton Fadiman's celebrated "Information Please" became a nation's Tuesday night diversion.

The idea was Lee Segall's, a Houston, Tex., business man and Valentine's original sponsor 12 years ago when the then 20-year-old became a radio crooner to put himself through the University of Texas.

FLORA FINCH, STAR OF SILENT FILMS, IS DEAD

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5 (AP)—Flora Finch, one of silent films' outstanding comediennes, is dead at Good Samaritan Hospital from blood poisoning.

Miss Finch was taken to the hospital last Saturday after a streptococcus infection developed from an accidental cut on her arm.

The screen's original "ugly duckling," she determined even as a girl to make capital of her thin, angular face and figure. Teamed with the contrastingly fat and jovial John Bunny, she evoked howls of mirth with her every appearance on the early flickering screens of filmland's pre-colossal days.

"I knew I wasn't a pretty child," she said recently, "and the knowledge turned me naturally toward comedy. What's important in acting is being true to yourself—expressing the best that's in you—and I made up my mind to do that, regardless of my lack of beauty."

When she died, Miss Finch was a stock player at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, drawing a regular salary for bit, extra and atmosphere roles. Few of the stars on her sets knew who she was.

FINNS, SOVIETS LOCKED IN GRIM DEATH STRUGGLE

said that Finnish war planes bombed Russian bases and stores at Murmansk, where a large oil depot has been blazing for several days.

GET MORE PLANES

It was understood that the Finnish air force, which at the outbreak of the war numbered about 250 planes, will have another 400 before the end of January most of them modern British fighting craft.

In addition, it was reported that many Finnish aviators are now en route to England, or are already there, to fly the new planes home.

Advices to Helsinki said it was reported that Russia's famous, bewhiskered cavalry general, Semion Mikhailovitch Budenny is taking over supreme command of the Soviet campaign against Finland, replacing Gen. Gregory Stern, who has been reported in bad grace at Moscow because of his failure to crack the Finnish defenses.

Finnish ski patrols composed of some of the country's leading skiers wrecked the Murmansk railroad, authoritative sources said seriously hampering the flow of Russian supplies to the Red army units in the north.

At least 1000 Russians were killed, it was reported, when the daring ski patrols blew up a bridge and caused a Russian troop train to plunge headlong into a snow-filled ravine.

For the time being, Finnish authorities said, the Leningrad-Murmansk line has been rendered utterly useless to the Reds. Altogether, it has been cut at five points.

Meanwhile, further details of yesterday's Finnish aerial activities reached the capital. It was reported that a squadron of Finnish warplanes dropped no less than 3,000,000 pamphlets on Leningrad alone, with photographs of dead and frozen Russian soldiers. These leaflets were said to have caused riots in the Soviet city.

FIND RED ARMY PLANS

The planes that attacked the Soviet bases at Oesel and Dagoe Islands were British aircraft manned by Finnish aviators, it was stated, while Italian planes were responsible for a devastating assault against Russian troops and the Soviet base at Liinahamari in the Far North.

While battle roared on the Salla front, other battle zones were relatively quiet.

It was reported that a major Russian offensive against the Mannerheim line on the Karelian front had been scheduled for tomorrow, but authorities in Helsinki today expressed doubts that it would be launched.

The Russian program was revealed through documents found on the bodies of dead Russian officers, International News Service learned. The slain officers were found in a tank destroyed by the Finns yesterday before the Mannerheim line.

500,000 IN RESERVE

Officials revealed that the documents revealed the Russian plans in such details that, after reading them, Finnish artillery officers were able to "raise havoc" among Russian troop concentrations at several points.

The Russians are concentrating huge numbers of troops along the Karelian front, latest advices say they have about 800,000 men, 500,000 of whom are being held in reserve.

Stern Recalled Because He Was Born a Finn?

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 5 (INS)—A clue to the reason for the recall of Gen. Gregori Stern from active command of Soviet troops on the Finnish front came to light in Copenhagen today.

Stern is actually a Finn, reliable information said, having been born on the Aaland islands which lie between Finland and Sweden.

His father, a former Finnish army officer, is still alive, it was understood, and was evacuated to a place of comparative safety with thousands of other Finns at the outbreak of war.

Observers in Copenhagen wondered whether Stern had "pulled his punches" rather than endanger members of his own family and the land of his birth.

Gen. Stern, who routed Japanese troops at Changkufeng last year and who was regarded as one of the ablest of Russian commanders, was placed in charge of the Finnish campaign only on Dec. 28.

Belgian Cabinet Resigns in Body

BRUSSELS, Jan. 5 (INS)—The Belgian cabinet today handed its collective resignation to King Leopold in a move that surprised Brussels political circles.

Prime Minister Hubert Pierlot was entrusted with the task of forming a new cabinet.

Today's action was interpreted by observers as a move to prune the largest Cabinet in the country's history for reasons of economy and as having no bearing on the international situation.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Former Premier Paul Van Zeeland, arrived by airplane in London today for conferences the purpose of which he did not disclose.

British Ship Seizing Plan Rouses Critics

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP) H. M. Cleminson, general manager of the United Kingdom Chamber of Shipping, declared today the nation would receive "with questioning if not even concern" the government requisitioning of all high seas ships of the kingdom and colonies.

He questioned whether the country could obtain as effective service from the Merchant Marine "in the straitjacket of government control," and whether the basis of requisitioning would not "be such as to leave British shipping ill-equipped financially to face post-war competition, which is bound to be fierce."

LIMITED CONTROL

"Shipping usually is paid best when it is needed most," he said, "because then enterprise which has gone unrewarded receives its reward. If British shipping is to be able to face the future, these considerations must be faced by the minister of shipping."

Sir John Gilmour, minister of shipping, emphasized that the requisitioning, effective Feb. 1 for most ships, would apply only to instructions on cargoes and routes, leaving management to the owners.

One shipping executive said the order would "cause enormous dissatisfaction among ship owners," adding, "I cannot see that more red tape is going to help. The whole thing is a scandal."

TONNAGE IS REDUCED

Another shipowner, however, said most of the big companies favored requisitioning and that it would help keep living costs down.

Cleminson said the shippers were anxious to serve the nation and "avoid any suspicion of profiteering."

Virtually full control of shipping was introduced in the World War in February, 1917, following protests against shipping profits.

The present tonnage of 17,891,134 is 1,000,955 less than at the start of the World War, exclusive of tankers, which, Cleminson said "meet a need now that was almost non-existent then."

SOVIETS TAKE SHIP

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 5 (AP)—The new 8950-ton passenger steamer Josef Stalin, built here for Russia, was taken over today by Soviet agents.

Hungarian Envoy In Italy for Parley

ROME, Jan. 5 (AP)—Count Istvan Csaky, Hungarian foreign minister, arrived in Venice today for discussions tomorrow with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano. The possibility was reported in Budapest that Count Csaky might talk to Premier Mussolini Monday.

Among subjects expected to be reviewed are Hungary's territorial claims on Rumania and policy toward any Soviet Russian steps in the Balkans.

Big Guns Roar On West Front

PARIS, Jan. 5 (INS)—General but spasmodic artillery fire shattered the calm of the western front today, particularly in the Moselle river area where the Germans attempted some counter-battery work and also sought to break up what they believed were allied communications and supply bases for troop concentrations.

Advices to Paris said the allied batteries replied effectively to the German fire.

In addition, there were intense patrol activities west of the Saar, but aviation was held on the ground by unfavorable weather.

Denies Nazi-Red 'Giant War' Plan

BERLIN, Jan. 5 (INS)—Reports published abroad that Germany and Soviet Russia have decided upon military action "from the Baltic to the Black sea" were denied by German quarters today.

Germany's attitude concerning the Russo-Finnish conflict was defined in these words:

"The Reich will continue to make every effort to remain neutral in this conflict. Germany is permitting Russia free hand in the north, just as Russia is not interfering in Germany's war in the west.

"Any sort of counter-action by Germany in Scandinavia will follow only if and when England and France intervene actively in behalf of Finland."

Duce May Pay Visit To Pope Next Week

ROME, Jan. 5 (AP)—Premier Mussolini is expected in political circles to visit Pope Pius XII some time between Jan. 11 and 18, following formal calls exchanged by the Pope and the Italian royal family late in December.

Authoritative circles have made clear that any contacts between the Italian government and the Vatican are merely signs of cordiality, without signifying any immediate move for peace in Europe.

U. S. Marine Sentry Shoots Jap Soldier

SHANGHAI, Jan. 5 (AP)—A United States Marine sentry shot and slightly wounded a Japanese private in the American Embassy compound in Peiping early today, according to a joint communique issued by Japanese and American military authorities at Peiping.

The statement failed to explain the incident, but predicted "an amicable settlement after negotiations."

Modern Glamour Girls

By George Clarke

"Some women cultivate glamour . . . like an orchid in a hot house . . .

THE degree of glamour achieved by Carole Lombard is exactly measurable by the difference between the name she took to storm the heights of Hollywood . . . and the name she had in her pig-tail days back home in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Jane Peters . . . Carole Lombard.

Jane Peters, the slightly overweight pride and joy of the Peterses who lived in that big, square old white house, with the shutters under the eaves down by the Congregational Church . . . she of the mouse-colored hair, the pointed nose, the strong jaw

Ho an strong jaw! and of the lovely softly beautiful eyes

Carole Lombard, the startling blonde, with the figure of an angel, the face of a Dante Gabriel Rossetti madonna, the charm of an Elizabeth Browning . . . reigning Empress of Hollywood, and the Queen Consort of the King of the Cinema, Clark Gable

As the boys around the Brown

JANE PETERS
Is Carole Lombard

Derby probably say in award letters

"Now, you take that Carole Lombard—there's a gal who's done all right for herself!"

And she certainly has . . .

Little Janey Peters, a tittle on the hippy side, was, literally, Paramount Studios ugly duckling when she was assigned to her first picture or that lot . . .

"Why did they do that to us!" moaned producer, director, author in one of those innumerable "story conferences," which, in Hollywood, seem to be going on most of the time, and which, strangely, sometimes lead to something . . . but the studio heads were obdurate, and she made her debut

Something of the way her bosses felt toward her must have registered for she started out, but deliberately, to make them "eat their words" . . . But who can tell what lonely heartaches she endured, what tears were shed in privacy of her dressing room . . . It isn't pleasant to be an . . . a mortician, in Hollywood

AND so she met the suave and genteel William Powell, often referred to as "the most polished actor in Hollywood," who, in truth, is so polished he plays butler roles better than any other!

They started to keep company, and in the summer of 1931 they were married, and the ceremony was performed back home in Fort Wayne . . . Society editors of the Fort Wayne papers commented glowingly on the advances made in Hollywood by "the little Peters girl"

No sure was she of she at the time that she had found the ultimate degree of happiness, that life could surely hold no more than marriage to her idol the man of her dreams that a year later she gave out a very confident interview

"Oh," she said, and with a pretty lift of her shapely shoulders—by this time she was down to a snappy 115 pounds—and a shake of her head, "this isn't an ordinary Hollywood marriage Oh, no—we are ideally mated We have so many interests, so much in common.

"Why, this is a marriage which was made in Heaven . . . and it will last for always."

Well, it didn't . . . Maybe the answer lies in that Fort Wayne marriage license which states "Jane Peters, 22," and "William Powell, 38." Sixteen years is a long time, and a big difference in ages when two people start out to make their lives chime on a single note . . . There are some who say that Powell was bound to her. There are some who say that she wanted to be on the go all the time that every night it had to be a different night club, a different theater . . . and that she developed a taste for brandy and gins

Not that she was ever what might be called a "lush," but she did want a good time

Powell has said that what he wanted more than anything then was a home a friend: a place to relax of an evening take off his shoes and slip into comfortable slippers . . . So they were divorced

But Powell had left his imprint upon her . . . He had taught her how to think, and had instilled in her a love for the beautiful . . . lovely music fine, intelligent books by good authors, pictures by fine artists and a love for exquisite luxury

This last attribute became one of her outstanding qualities in the years that followed No one in Hollywood dressed so well, or in such good taste She deintelligentsia . . . Then Clark Gable zoomed into her ken.

There he was, big, handsome, and growly, idol of a million feminine hearts, the ideal lover in the estimation of millions of the fair sex . . . and Carole marked him for her own

Her first overt gesture was a practical joke—and she has a Hollywood reputation for practical jokes — which consisted of buying an old, delapidated and broken fire engine, to which she gave a new coat of paint, a shiney new bell, and which she presented to Gable—to the delight of the children in the neighborhood

Other gifts followed . . . a broken-down Ford, a mule for his farm; . . . and Gable roared with laughter, and privately vowed that at last he had come across a girl who understood him, who knew what he liked . . . Maybe he didn't realize it, but he was actually getting to like what she liked . . . and he added gem after gem to her collection of emeralds, one of the finest collections in the country

But Gable was married, had been for a long time, and that had to be ended It finally was by Mrs. Rhea Gable who in a fine gesture, wished him happiness in his new love, and, recently told the world that he, her ex-husband, was the only man in the world who could have played Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind!"

So Lombard and Gable are married now, and live on a ranch up in the San Fernando Valley, near the one where Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck hold forth . . . and they are very happy, indeed.

But, it must be remembered that Carole has never let anything, even love, interfere with her acting . . . She is one of the greatest, the best emotional actresses of the screen.

Despite all that has happened to her—her amazing career, her present happiness—she has never forgotten one thing—

She still knows how to cry . . .

THE DISASTROUS EFFECT upon American agriculture of the proposed reciprocal trade agreement with Argentina may be vividly illustrated by the dire consequences of the agreement which impend in the domestic production of casein.

Casein is an important by-product of the American dairy industry, which enables farmers and cattlemen to show a measure of profit in their operations, and at the same time supply milk and butter to consumers at a reasonable price.

If the revenues now obtainable from casein and other by-products had to be provided solely from the sale of milk and butter, farmers would either have to get exorbitant prices for these vital products or be ruined.

Now casein is a product which Argentina produces in abundance, and the Argentine workers who produce it get lower wages and work longer hours than American workers.

Argentine casein can therefore be laid down in the United States at a price lower than American casein.

The only way to retain an advantage for the American product in the American market is through a protective tariff.

TARIFF PROTECTION has been employed, and is now in effect, and is the reason for the present comparative usefulness and success of casein production in the United States.

But the proposed reciprocal trade agreement with Argentina includes casein among the Argentine products upon which tariffs may be reduced.

It can easily be seen what will happen to casein production in the United States if this is done.

A valuable American product will be harmed, if not rendered useless.

American agriculture will be deprived of a legitimate and indispensable source of revenue.

Why should this foolish thing be done to American agriculture?

Why should the many American workers, who find profitable employment in casein production be deprived of work and wages?

Of course, greater importation of casein would result, and an important Argentine agricultural product would be advantageously marketed in the United States, and Argentine workmen and farmers would benefit.

But why should such results be achieved AT THE EXPENSE OF AMERICAN WORKERS AND FARMERS?

Why should an American government desire to inflict such a situation upon its own people?

OUR GOVERNMENT ought to be chiefly concerned with marketing American products, and promoting American employment.

Other governments are concerned with their own interests, and protect their own people, and safeguard their own markets.

Why should the Government of the United States be so prodigal with American jobs, products, opportunities and investments?

Why cannot it be as solicitous of American welfare as the British government is of British welfare, or—as a better and more pertinent example—as the Argentine government is of Argentine welfare?

It is reported from Washington that the American State Department, which has the authority to make such an agreement with Argentina, is hurrying to negotiate this harmful treaty before Congress removes its authority to do so.

Public protest in the United States against such haste in accomplishing the ruin of American agriculture should be so vigorous that even the State Department will hear and heed it.

Congress should and probably will kill the Trade Agreements Act.

But the vital functions of American agriculture should not be killed in the meantime.

A RECORD REGISTRATION of automobiles in Massachusetts is announced. There are 605,136 motor vehicles on our highways—an increase of 23,745 over the 1939 number.

This is encouraging news. It proves that Bay State people are more prosperous. And it shows that, investing in the pleasure and comfort of automobiles, they are making intelligent use of their prosperity.

Too many people fail to appreciate the importance of the automobile in the American economic picture.

Motor, body and parts factories employ 389,000 men and pay them wages exceeding $12,225,000 a year.

Also, the industry contributes hundreds of millions of dollars annually to other industries. Eighty per cent of the nation's rubber, 16 per cent of its steel, 33 per cent of its lead, 25 per cent of its nickel and 90 per cent of its gasoline go into automobiles.

Nor should anyone ever forget TAXES. In a 12-month period they extract $2,666,000,000 from motorists' pockets!

Sunshine and Shadow

THE woodland paths we used to know . . . are flooded now with golden glow . . . as if the sunlight could impart . . . sweet solace to the broken heart.

The groves, so late a Fairyland . . . through which we wandered hand in hand . . . now you are gone, in vain unfold . . . their tapestries of green and gold . . . tho' falling leaves of russet hue . . . bring silent messages from you.

In memory's sunshine you appear . . . at times so vibrant and so near . . . the sunshine as it brighter glows . . . the shadows even deeper throws.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

WHEN THE FILM, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," starring the late Rudolph Valentino, was shown, California librarians reported numerous inspired readers inquiring for "The Four Horsemen of the Eucalyptus."

Staff members of New York's new Information Center, opposite the Grand Terminal, report similar boners, and many naive questions by puzzled citizens.

The rash of quiz programs, of information features in newspapers and magazines, and of similarly contrived party games seems to indicate a lively stirring of curiosity, manifesting itself on a national scale.

Possibly public bewilderment on matters of great import, such as European power politics, the alphabetical complexities of New Deal economies, the buried gold hoard in Kentucky, the menace of inflation, to say nothing of the hair-dos of 1939—possibly all this and more is making us yearn for answers in the Scriptural "Yea, yea and nay, nay."

I THINK it works like this: You have been trying to decide who has rooked whom, over in Europe and how that will affect the high price of nails, and your head is buzzing like a cageful of squirrels. You start fiddling with the radio and get a quiz program. The question is, "When and by whom were the Mohammedans barred from Europe?" Before the studio answer can be given you shout, "In 632, by Karl Martel at the Battle of Tours."

RUDOLPH VALENTINO
His Picture Inspired Readers

Then you call to your wife out in the kitchen, "Hey! I just made a sucker of that mental giant on the radio," and you tell her all about it. You learned that answer in the first year of high school and that was the first time you ever got a play on it.

Perhaps a night or two later you are a jump ahead of the quiz entrant on which American President wore sideburns. This goes on for a few weeks and there is a new light in your eye, a firmer set to your shoulders, a new assurance of voice and manner. You begin to think it is about time you asked the boss for that raise.

We have mislaid our philosopher's license, but we think perhaps we've got something here. When the great abstractions of politics take on grotesque shapes, or just faded off into smoke, as Lucretius warned us they always would, there is a new and deeper satisfaction in concretions, in precise, provable and understandable facts.

There is in them egoistic satisfaction, too, and egos need nourishment just as much as bodies.

The "well-posted man" of the cracker barrel forum of yesteryear was usually a sound, substantial citizen, if he didn't happen to be the village souse, and knowing all the answers gave him an air of ease and authority.

HE MIGHT have been a bit stuffy, with all his erudition, but the point is that he was on intimate terms with the universe, perhaps even with Providence. He was no neurotic, lost in the fogs of doubt and indecision.

Therein, we'll bet a cookie, lies the explanation of all this quiz business. It is an instinctive turn to the salutary mental conditioning of the factual and objective, away from the miasma and shifting illusion of the current world of abstract ideas.

It may be silly to think that anyone may be bucked up because he knows when the battle of Hastings was fought, but he always is.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—We went yesterday—rather a large family party—to listen to the President deliver his message to Congress.

The message was, of course, only a prelude to the budget message, which is the real indication of what the Administration hopes Congress will do during the coming year.

I enjoy going up to Congress largely because I like to watch the reactions of the "floor." Certain amenities must, of course, be preserved, and all arise to greet the President whether they like the President or not. But when it comes to the speech, they applaud largely according to their political affiliations.

STATEMENTS which could certainly be subscribed to by all political parties, for some unknown reason, the Democrats applaud, while the Republicans sit with their hands carefully inactive! When the President announced, however, that except for national defense, all other items of the budget would show a decrease, the Republican side of the House applauded vigorously.

To an onlooker who is not much of a politician, this sudden indiscriminate applause is somewhat surprising. Do the Republicans mean by that they have such complete confidence in the Administration that any reduction, no matter for what purpose, will be accepted without scrutiny?

GIANT GUN FOR AMERICAN NATIONAL DEFENSE
Are Weapons of This Kind Enough, First Lady Wonders

They applauded also the expenditures for national defense, but their applause for all reductions would seem to indicate that national defense means to them only expenditure for the Army and Navy and munitions of war.

Health, unemployment, the preservation of people's morale until the answers to modern economic questions are found are apparently party matters, not matters of national interest and have no part in the national defense.

What is this? Blindness? Ignorance? Indifference or partisanship?

Fortunately, applause probably has little or nothing to do with the real thinking and conviction of these human beings when they get out of a situation which they feel is controlled on a partisan basis, and we can hope that national unity on questions of national importance may be possible in spite of what might be called superficial indications to the contrary.

Regardless of the fact that according to our different lights we may consider that certain objectives should be achieved in different ways, still we can agree on those objectives and arrive at compromise methods through a conference rather than through vituperative cat and dog fights which defeat not only methods but often objectives as well.

HEIFETZ RAISES BIG POTATOES

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—Jascha Heifetz took William Albaugh, the Baltimore impresario, for a tour of his Connecticut farm . . Heifetz proudly answered all questions concerning the cost and revenue returned by the farm . . . "But, according to your figures," Albaugh reminded, "it costs you almost 10 cents to raise every potato" . . . "Yes," Heifetz explained, seriously, "but you forget—they're big potatoes."

BURTON HOLMES, who has been lecturing for 47 years, appeared in Hartford last week and delivered his lecture from a wheelchair . . . Although Holmes lectured about his travels, he was mystified when his audience greeted him with laughter. The bearded lecturer, who has a fractured leg, then discovered that "The Man Who Came to Dinner"—concerning a bearded lecturer with a fractured leg—had its try-out performance in Hartford . . . "After 47 years," he lamented, "I never thought I'd wind up as a one-man road company for Woollcott."

GLADYS SWARTHOUT, visiting Washington, posed with the First Lady, who was holding a bouquet of flowers . . . Just before the camera man took the picture, Mrs. Roosevelt asked them to wait, placed her flowers in Miss Swarthout's arms and explained: "The prima donna should be holding these."

ONE OF THE MOST puzzled members of the New York Stock Exchange is a broker who told his colleagues that he had purchased four dozen eggs at Washington Market in preparation for an eggnog party his wife was giving . . . He made the mistake of telling them that the eggs were in his car . . . During the lunch hour two brokers went to the car, removed them and returned them to the original box—hardboiled.

THE SOCIALITE Mrs. John Moffatt, who entertained the John Jacob Astors, suddenly remembered at El Morocco last night that her costly diamond and ruby brooch was missing . . . She searched the cafe in vain, and then went outside. There on the sidewalk—where cabbies were congregated and hundreds of people had walked on their way in and out of the cafe—was the brooch.

J. P. MORGAN, whose partners last week testified before the monopoly committee in Washington, still remembers, with no great pleasure, the occasion when he testified before the Senate's Banking and Currency Committee . . . Whenever he plays golf and reference is made to his apparent calmness, Morgan explains: "If I make a bad shot and start getting excited, I pretend that my opponent is Ferdinand Pecora."

THE FLORIDA SEASON has advanced enough to nominate the Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel and Ruby Foo's Tropical Den as the places most favored by Miami Beach's heterogeneous brand of cafe society . . . The interesting feature of this conclusion is that Bostonians own or operate both spots . . . Ben Ginsburg (Gaines), former boss of the Mayfair, presides at the Dempsey-Vanderbilt . . . In his third year as commander of the very modern hotel, situated in an exclusive stretch of beach, the erstwhile Boston cafe-operator has shot the inn to an unchallenged position as the hotel favored by the liveliest stratums of our citizenry, i.e., stage and film-folk, prosperous gentlemen from the sporting world, owners and trainers of active horse-stables, and successful politicians from all parts of the country.

NAMES FROM BLUE-BOOKS of Eastern cities also find their way on the hotel's register, and it is this cosmopolitan collection we mean by describing the tropical resort's cafe society as heterogeneous . . . Money, more than social position, talks in Miami Beach, and the chatter is more interesting (if more loud) than one might find in Palm Beach, to the north . . . Bennie of the Boston Ginsburgs has a personality which might verily have been cut to pattern for the express purpose of filling the post of greeter at the Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel . . . The hotel has been enlarged by (70 rooms and a salt-water swimming pool) . . Correspondents among whom is Dave Wilson, the headman of the handicappers, informs us that the hotel could use another hudnred or two rooms without exhausting its waiting list.

BUT THE NEW SENSATION of the fashionable city so aptly dubbed by New Yorkers as "Long Beach Under the Palms"—(the Boston equivalent might be "Nantasket Under etc."—) is Ruby Foo's Den . . . It's the Lindy's, the Dave's Blue Room, the Boston Ruby Foo's Den all combined of Miami Beach . . . It is where the stayer-uppers gather, and where the dawn is being greeted these lovely Florida nights . . . Another Ginsburg, Benny's brother Al, is concerned in the operation of Ruby Foo's . . . Al Goldman of the New York tribe of restaurateur-brothers, is the manager, and the trouble-shooter and brain-behind-the-scene is Miss Foo herself.

IT WAS RUBY ON WHOM the boys called for help as a small army of Chinese waiters declared a strike the day before New Year's Eve . . She hopped by plane to New York and settled the trouble in a hurry . . . How? . . . A plane-load of other Chinese waiters was held in readiness for departure . . . There must be a grapevine in Chinese waiterdom, because the strike didn't come off . . . They say the customers were ten-deep as the New Year dawned, and that celebrators brought the morning to an enjoyable conclusion by waiting for the sunrise in Ruby's jernt . . . The place is a going gold-mine, as is the Dempsey-Vanderbilt . . . Vaughn Monroe is playing at the Dempsey-Vanderbilt again this season . . . We get our information, naturally, at second-hand, but as no interested parties are responsible for the reports, your correspond-

BING CROSBY'S NEXT IS 'GHOST MUSIC'

By Louella O. Parsons

Bing Crosby

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5—I was the first newspaper reporter to interview Atty-Gen. Frank Murphy after he had been notified that his appointment to the Supreme Court awaited only the Senate's approval. The newsreel reporters and Washington scribes waited in the outer room because I had a show so the attorney-general very kindly saw me first. I have an idea he will be flying to California before he goes into his new office and I can assure Hollywood that he is indeed a good friend of the industry. It was thrilling to see the stacks and stacks of telegrams he had received. Many of them were from his native Detroit. But he looks very tired and had a bad cold

BING CROSBY'S next picture for Paramount will be "Ghost Music"—and this studio has announced so many pictures for Mary Martin in 1940, I almost hesitate to add that she will be his costar. Just when the film gets started all depends on whether or not Mary plays the New York run of "Goin' Places," which rated lukewarm reviews in its Boston tryout. Maybe Para is gambling that Mary will return to Hollywood sooner than expected in lining up three 1940 productions for her—"Miami," the untitled Jack Benny-Fred Allen opus and now "Ghost Music." As for Bing—I hear he'll play his most romantic screen role to date. Since he's always shied away from movie love scenes it will be amusing to see how he out-Boyers Boyer.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

TRIGGER JOE was a model gangster. He contributed lavishly to numerous enterprises, provided every luxury for his mother, and excelled in marksmanship in a gang, each member of which habitually rang doorbells with a pot-shot from an automatic.

But he had one failing; he could never remember to wind his watch.

At home or at "headquarters" this was no bother because other people kept the timepieces running. Elsewhere he was lost, for his own watch was never going.

He was acutely conscious of this failing and blushed deeply whenever it was mentioned.

ONE COLD day, when the fuel bill was especially high and new fur coats had become essential for the sweethearts of the gang, the leader presented a plan which would insure sufficient revenue for the worst of the winter.

The plan, although it necessitated his being exposed to the rigors of winter in the role of driver of the getaway car, received the approval of Trigger Joe.

According to the program proposed by the master mind, he was to drive to a designated point near the bank at precisely the moment when he could best satisfy the desire for travel on the part of the gang—a desire that was expected to be rather acute at that time.

As the success of the venture hinged upon a prompt and exact arrival at the pre-arranged point, each member of the gang solemnly wound Trigger Joe's watch the preceding night, as a check upon his recognized failing.

THE NEXT day dawned bright and clear, but Trigger Joe was a small matter of a half-hour late with the getaway car.

When the gang was once more reunited—this time in jail—a thorough and somewhat heated investigation revealed that too great enthusiasm had once again taken its toll.

In their winding efforts his associate gangsters had broken the main-spring, alike of Joe's watch and their own efforts.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

YOU CAN'T label people as you would vegetables or hardware. And you're only wishing grief on yourself if you decide that people are this or that and then expect them to act accordingly. People are never so simple.

People aren't bad OR good. They are bad AND good at the same time. People aren't wise OR foolish, kind OR cruel, honest OR dishonest, brave OR timid, nice OR nasty. They are ALL these things within the same nature at the same moment. And the reason is obvious—

We haven't come very far from the jungle yet, we humans. We're still close to our dark animal beginnings . . . still bound by the fears and hungers that rule animal life.

THERE'S mighty little difference between the feelings of a baby man and a baby gorilla. They're both timid and greedy, both selfish and ruthless in getting their own way.

And all through life that brute nature persists, side by side with our taller desires—gorilla struggling against man, man struggling against gorilla.

That struggle constantly confuses you and upsets your plans. It bewilders you in yourself. It infuriates you in the other fellow. You try to escape from it by tying tickets to things. Saying that This Thing is Good, and That Thing is Bad. But it can't be done! For nothing is entirely right—nor entirely wrong.

The most gracious act may root in the most cussed motive and the most deplorable mess may have sprung from a noble urge. You recognize this fact easily enough in your own life, yet can never get to it in the Other Fellow's.

Most of your misery comes from this attempt to fit people and life to your own fantastic pattern, instead of taking them as they are.

Actually people are much more wonderful as they are than as you'd like to have them—and much more companionable.

IF YOU CAN get along with yourself, you can get along with anyone.

Quit labelling people and getting sore because they don't fit your labels. Accept them as they come and take a chance on them. YOU'LL BE SURPRISED!

'Save My 3 Brothers From War,' Her Plea

For the sake of her own three brothers, and for that of young men of other nations, a South Weymouth girl, Miss Ella Van Meter of 51 Fogg rd., joins with scores of other New England women in pledging herself to the National Legion of Mothers of America, to safeguard the youth of America from wars that do not concern them.

She writes:

"I have three brothers who would be eligible to fight in case of war, and I would certainly hate to see them killed or injured or to think of them having to kill other young men. I can't see that any good would come of the United States going to war to settle some other countries' difficulties. Let them settle their own."

Prepared to stand beside her seven sons to defend America, but pledging her aid in preventing these sons, and the sons of other mothers, from useless sacrifice in wars for foreign causes, Mrs. Bertha Manning of 139 Scituate st., Arlington, writes:

"I am joining your fine campaign. I am with you, as I have seven sons all of war age. I would stand beside them in defense of our beloved America, but never on foreign soil. God bless all your mothers and give them strength to fight this thing. I am with you body and soul."

And with five sons she will proudly give in the service of their country, Mrs. Isabelle A. Bradbury of 1299 Methuen st., Dracut, joins the Legion and writes:

HELP PLEDGED

"I am sending you my pledge and I am more than glad to be connected with such a worthy cause. I have five sons, all good Americans, but I can't bear the thought of them shedding their blood for any but their own country.

"More power to the National Legion of Mothers!"

An Allston mother, Mrs. Elizabeth McKeann of 99 Hooker st., writes:

"I wish to pledge with all mothers of America my help in keeping our sons out of war. I have four sons of military age and God forbid that they should be taken from me. Let them defend America and not Europe."

The women of America have the duty and responsibility of keeping this country from foreign wars, Mrs. Eleanor H. Harris of Winchester writes, enclosing her pledge to the Legion.

HAS TWO BOYS

"I am desirious of joining the National League of Mothers of America," Mrs. Harris says. "It will be up to the women of America to keep the United States out of war.

"I have two boys, one 21 years of age, a junior at the University of Maine, and one 17, a junior in Winchester High school. I also have two daughters. My husband has been unemployed for six years, due to the depression after the last war."

Postage Holds Up Christmas Mail

WORCESTER, Jan. 5—There are about ten thousand Christmas cards yet undelivered here, Postmaster James F. Healy said today, but he had a good excuse.

They are incorrectly addressed or have insufficient postage. Some big cards, he noted, which should have had 20 cents postage came with a 2 cent stamp.

Enlistments In Army Gain

Army enlistments by Massachusetts youths are daily increasing, Col. James M. Petty, chief of staff for the second military area, announced today.

He attributed the increase in enlistments to the efforts of a reserve officer committee with representatives in every city and town in the Comonwealth.

At the headquarters of the Reserve Officers committee it was learned that merchants, particularly chain stores, had beeen most co-operative in donating valuable window space to army posters.

According to Reserve Officers of Col. Duffie's committee this may be considered as partially responsible for the great increase in enrollment—as high as 25 in one day in this state.

FATHER OF 2, THUG VICTIM, MAY DIE

A 39-year-old Roslindale man, father of two children, was beaten and robbed by thugs in the North End today then left unconscious in a Hanover st. doorway.

The victim, Leo H. LaCourse, of Pinedale rd., Roslindale, was found stretched on a stairway, bleeding profusely, by Patrolman Edward Burke of the North End station.

At City Hospital he regained consciousness long enough to murmur his name and mumble a few words about being robbed.

Another victim of thugs was Miss Katherine O'Brien, 60, of Mall st., Roxbury, who was robbed and struck many times as she was walking along Harrison ave., Roxbury.

As they seized her handbag, containing $1, the thieves hurled the elderly woman to the pavement. She was treated at City Hospital for a dislocated shoulder and numerous bruises.

The young mother took the checks while she was selling Christmas cardsf rom house to house, Horne said.

Five months ago she was found guilty in feded court on similar charges and eed from jail a month later wn she was placed on probation, plice said.

Convicts Win Pardons for Aid in Quake

ANKARA, Jan. 5 (AP)—Pardons for 15 convicts who scorned escape and risked their lives to rescue more than 1000 women and children buried under wreckage by the Anatolian earthquake of Dec. 27 were recommended today by the government at a special parliamentary session.

The men all serving long sentences in barracks at the Erzincan prison, displayed what the government called "magnificent courage."

They organized rescue squads and dug for days in the ruined buildings of the town, apparently barfied but by the quake that caused an estimate loss of 45,000 lives.

A campaign for adoption of disaster orphans by wealthy families was begun in Ankara as the first tramboad of 210 children arrived.

Damage was reported today from new earth shocks that toppled buildings in the Smyrna region. No more losses of life were recorded.

dent is willing to accept an early-season verdict . . . That is that Bostonians are at the helms of the real "hot spots" of the most famous watering-place of the Eastern seaboard.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Virginia Wilson, the Newton girl who exchanged a love for ballroom dancing into a well-paying avocation, struck out for New York at the wheel of her coupe early today after completing a two-week engagement at the Mayfair . . . She and her D'Avalo Dancers were imported to test Boston's fondness for the conga and rhumba . . . In Sunday's column, we advised that the progress along these lines might be indicated by Virginia's immediate future . . . Her depature does not mean that the local kid and her troupe of two slickum lads and another girl were not successful . . . Her contract had been extended . . . But the D'Avalos had to report in New York and the Mayfair released Miss Wilson from her pact.

NOW THAT "WALKER CORBETT" has been identified as a nom de plume, a young man-about-town must be at least slightly embarrassed . . . He had found his popularity immoderately enhanced in the nightclub belt after he had dropped the word casually that he would appreciate material for his weekly essay . . . Several of the song-pluggers fell hard, because 'Walker Corbett" has been relating the stories behind the hit-songs among other dissections of the current scene . . . The chappie now shies like a frightened filly when he sees George "Walker Corbett" Clarke at closehand, or even in the offing.

'Open Church' Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please give me some points concerning an "open church" informal wedding.

1—The bride is to wear a going-away suit of black velvet. Does she carry a purse and does she remove one or both gloves during the ceremony?

2—What is the best form for invitations to such a wedding?

May the minister extend an invitation to the church people at an earlier service, and may the others be invited by telephone or informal notes from the bride's mother?

R.

1—When the bride wears a suit she would not wear gloves during the ceremony. Also she should not carry a purse during the ceremony, this would be inconvenient.

2—The most appropriate and the most gracious form of invitations for this informal wedding would be notes written by the bride's mother, the hostess of the occasion. Perhaps relatives and very intimate friends might be invited by telephone.

If the prospective bride and broom and their families especially wish that such a general invitation be given to all members of the congregation, and it this is a custom in their country this invitation may be given by the clergyman.

Old-Fashioned Desserts

By MARTHA LEE

Very few foods are as versatile as eggs for they can be used as a main dish in one meal, salad in another, dessert in a third and so on indefinitely. And whether served as a main dish, a dessert or what have you, eggs are one of the best food buys at any time of year.

Perhaps it is because eggs are so familiar that we forget their importance, yet eggs are one of the most valuable foods it is possible to find. Their nutritional value is high, their health-giving benefits many.

While custards are fine for children and grownups as well, you do not always want baked custard. An old-fashioned dessert known today as Spanish Cream was originally called "Quaking Custard" which seems to describe it very well indeed.

QUAKING CUSTARD

1 tbsp granulated gelatin
4 cups milk
½ cup sugar
2 egg yolks
5 egg whites
¼ tsp salt
1 tsp vanilla

Scald the milk with gelatin in the top of a double boiler. When the gelatin is dissolved add the sugar and pour slowly over the beaten egg yolks stirring constantly. Remove from heat add salt and vanilla, and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into cold wet molds and chill. Serve with custard sauce.

CUSTARD SAUCE

1 cup milk
1 egg yolk
1 egg
2 tbsp sugar
¼ tsp salt

Scald the milk in a double boiler. Pour over the beaten egg and extra yolk mixed with the sugar and salt. Return to double boiler and cook while stirring constantly until the mixture coats the spoon. Remove at once. Do not let water boil in the bottom of the double boiler.

Squash custards make a pleasing variation of baked custards and may be served topped with whipped cream.

SQUASH CUSTARD

4 tbsp butter
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ tsp nutmeg
1 cup cooked squash sifted
½ tsp salt
1 cup milk

Cream butter and add ½ cup sugar. Beat eggs and add remaining ¼ cup sugar and mix well. Combine butter and squash mixed with nutmeg, salt and milk. Pour into buttered custard cups, set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F. until firm. Honey may be used in place of sugar or a combination of sugar, honey and cinnamon using ½ tsp. of each. Brown sugar may be substituted and grated orange rind may be added for flavor.

FROZEN CUSTARD

1 cup milk
2 eggs beaten
½ cup sugar
¼ tsp salt
1 tsp vanilla
1 cup cream

Scald milk and stir into eggs, sugar and salt which have been mixed together. Return to fire in top of double boiler and cook over simmering water stirring constantly and until mixture thickens slightly and coats spoon. Cool, add vanilla and cream slightly beaten. Freeze rapidly in automatic refrigerator, stirring two or three times during the freezing period. Four egg yolks, or one egg and two yolks may be used in place of two eggs.

London Broiled Steak

1 flank steak, about 2 lbs.
Butter

Preheat broiler 10 minutes. Place steak on well greased broiler, dot with butter. The surface of the steak should be from ¾ to 2 inches below high heat the distance depending on the stove and rareness desired. Broil first on one side, then on the other allowing 4 to 6 minutes for each side. Remove steak to hot platter, season with salt and pepper, spread with softened butter. Carve diagonally against the grain. Serve with fried onions and mushroom sauce.

Love And Marriage

Loyalty Is First

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My brother-in-law and I are desperately in love with each other. We meet secretly and go out together, and we'd like to get married if he were free.

My sister and I are very good friends, and so I dislike to speak of divorce to her. We have thought of going away together, my brother-in-law and I, but don't think that would be the right thing to do. I have joined clubs and other groups to try and forget him, but can't get interested in anyone.

We have tried not to see each other for long periods, but that didn't help us any. Please suggest what we should do. I will be awaiting your answer in the paper.

JUST UNHAPPY.

I don't believe you realize, my dear girl, what a dishonorable thing you are doing in going out secretly with your sister's husband and wrecking her home.

You tell me you are a good friend of hers, but short of murder you could not do anything more destructive to her life and happiness. From the beginning, people have had unhappy loves of this type but there's a stern little word called "duty," to which people with ideals and consciences adhere.

If you read the papers, you cannot fail to note the bitter endings of love governed wholly by selfishness and passion. Force yourself to take an interest in someone else or something else. Get a job in another city. A change of scene works wonders. I am deeply sympathetic with you in this tragedy, but don't make matters worse.

Proposal Now Worries This Boy

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For the past two years I have been employed and am making fair wages. I am 21 years old. I'm very much in love with a girl of 18, who is a senior in high school and will graduate in February. She also says she fell in love with me at sight.

Knowing that a senior has to work hard, I suggested to her that we have our dates only over the week-ends, giving her plenty of time for study. We always have got along well, because neither one of us smokes or drinks, and we don't approve of heavy petting.

I want to ask her to marry me. Do you think it would be best to wait until she graduates, or shall I ask her right away? Of course, we would wait another year or so.

IN SUSPENSE.

Since you were so thoughtful to suggest seeing your fiancee only over the week-ends, because you didn't want to interfere with her studies, don't you think it would be wise to exercise the same restraint about proposing?

I'd suggest you wait until she gets her diploma.

She Should Give Idea a Tryout

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm engaged to marry a man whose wife died a couple of years ago. He has two children and his deceased wife's mother has been keeping house for them all, and they are very devoted to her. I have been to his house to dine several times and everything was always in apple-pie order and the cooking was superb.

My fiance is anxious to have this arrangement continue, and as I don't know much about housekeeping, he thinks I will find Mrs. —— very helpful. It seems a terribly unnatural arrangement to me, that a deceased wife's mother should live under the same roof with her son-in-law's bride. I expect to keep on with my position as secretary in a business office.

M.

Why condemn the arrangement before you have tried it, my dear? Personally, I see nothing unnatural for two children to live with their grandmother. You may be very glad for the assistance of a competent housekeeper, inasmuch as you tell me you know nothing about housekeeping and expect to continue in your office position. I'd give it a tryout anyhow.

You Can Be Beautiful

Scent of Carnations

By ARLINE GOULD

START off your New Year with a minor resolution of major importance . . . resolve to go the limit on all your little personal, pampering luxuries.

Use nothing in your toilette that doesn't leave with you an aura of exquisiteness . . . don't be content with the plain, unperfumed adjuncts to the bath . . . have always on hand a new bath soap that's so wonderfully redolent of spice pinks it pervades the whole room!

It's been made to match one of the most popular colognes there is . . . named "Dianthus" . . . for the old-fashioned, true-spice pink.

This is a great, chunky piece that weighs 6½ ounces and lathers like mad. It's made in a plump oblong that can't possibly evade your grasp, and no matter how merrily you run the shower over it, it will come up with profuse, scented lather.

We're honestly not joking about the way it pervades its surroundings . . . right now our own dressing room smells like a conservatory full of blooming carnations, and delicious whiffs of it blow into the hall outside.

This is a luxuriously done-up piece of soap, which comes in a pretty gifty box, so you can always count on it as an idea for some occasion . . . particularly a bridge party, when it will be a choice prize.

If you'd like to know more about this new true-carnation scented bath soap, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

'Gulliver's Travels' Moves To Scollay and Modern

"Gulliver's Travels," an old story in new guise, is the screen feature at the Scollay and Modern theaters for the week starting today.

Old? It is more than 200 years old, this classic by Jonathan Swift that technicolor and Max Fleischer have rescued from the library-shelves and animated for the delight of young and old.

Technically, the giant Gulliver is its hero. Actually, it is the thumb-sized town-crier, Gabby, himself a Fleischer brainchild, who winds himself around your heart as surely as King Little does around Gulliver's finger.

The second feature, "Our Neighbors, the Carters," features Fay Bainter, Frank Craven, Edmund Lowe and Genevieve Tobin. It is the story of a millionaire family and an impecunious family, who are respectively the poorest and the richest in the world as happiness goes.

$500.00 in Prizes to Amateur Artists

1st Prize $100.00 • 2nd $50.00 • 3rd $25.00 • 4th $15.00 • 5th $10.00.
Also 150 $2.00 prizes.

If you like to draw, see how well you can copy this girl. Send us your drawing. Perhaps you'll win first prize. This is an amateur contest so don't hesitate to enter.

FREE! If your drawing shows sufficient merit you will receive a grading and also our opinion as to whether it indicates art talent worth developing.

Commercial Artists play an important part in Industry today because design, color and illustrating help sell most merchandise. Such artists are in demand. It's a fine, well paid career for those who train their skill with pencil or brush. If you can draw, don't waste this rare gift. Train yourself to do work for which nature has fitted you and which few people can do. Developing natural ability is the way to success. We have trained many young men and women now capable of earning up to $5,000 yearly as artists. Here's a chance to test your talent. Read the rules and send us your drawing.

This contest open only to amateurs, 16 years old or more. Professional commercial artists and Federal School students are not eligible.

1. Make drawing of girl 5½ inches high, on paper 7 inches high. Draw only the girl, no lettering.
2. Use only pencil or pen.
3. We return no drawings.
4. Print your name, address (town, county, state), age, occupation on back of drawing.
5. All drawings must be received by January 31st, 1940.

Prizes will be awarded for drawings best in proportion and neatness by our School Faculty.

Vaudeville Program Scores

By HARRIS MORGAN

With a descending thermometer, this week's stage show at the RKO Boston is correspondingly more dressed up than was last week's cast of cutie cuticles but the footlights weather forecast continues "fair and warmer."

Particularly is this the cast when Jerry Cooper, of the screen and the air-lanes wafts his baritone voice about in such popular melodies as "Are You Havin' Any Fun?" "Dream Your Troubles Away," "My Prayer," "El Rancho Grande" and "I Didn't Know What Time It Was."

Cooper, who won national attention when three years ago he was first heard on Louella Parsons' coast-to-coast "Hollywood Hotel" weekly broadcast, is easily the show's star.

He has ample support, however, from the dancing Ravels, whose whose adagio work is of the attention-getting variety, and Johnny Masters and Rowena Rollins, who caricature the divine dancing of Astaire and Rogers with fiendish skill.

Good enough to be spotted in a Broadway revue are Stuart and Martin, who can say the corniest gags and make you laugh at them. Openers on the bill are Gil and Bernie Mason, who, with the cooperation of two smart Mexican Chihuahuas and a bulldog, achieve an amusing act for the K-B patrons.

For film fare, there are "Follow the Fleet," with the co-starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, and "Invisible Killer," featuring Grace Bradley and Roland Drew.

Jazz Age Film At Trans-Lux

"The Roaring Twenties," with James Cagney and Priscilla Lane co-starring in Mark Hellinger's absorbing recapitulation of America's late jag-and-jazz period, tops the Trans-Lux screen bill.

Flappers and jellybeans of that not so remote decade as well as their elders and juniors are unanimously agreed that "The Roaring Twenties" is as absorbing as it is factual.

Supporting players are Jeffrey Lynn, Humphrey Bogart, Gladys George, Frank McHugh and Paul Kelly.

On the same bill is "Pack Up Your Troubles," co-starring Jane Withers masquerading as a French girl and the Ritzes, as a trio of A. E. F. boys.

'Dead Enders' Top New Bowdoin Bill

"The Dead End Kids On Dress Parade," the Warners' picture with the "Dead Enders" co-starring with John Litel and Frankie Thomand "Little Accident," with Baby Sandy stealing the honors from his betters, Hugh Herbert, Florence Rice and Richard Carlson, come to the Bowdoin Square Theater tomorrow. This program will continue through Tuesday.

Hollywood Paragraphs

—By LOUELLA O. PARSONS—

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5—Understand there are two excellent reasons why Warners decided to postpone "The Prime Minister," the Disraeli opus starring Laurence Olivier.

First, Geraldine Fitzgerald, set for the femme lead, is expecting a baby. Second, if they hold the picture off until Vivien Leigh finishes "Waterloo Bridge" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer there's an excellent chance Warners will be able to borrow her to co-star with Olivier.

More and more the studios are making every effort to put these off-screen sweethearts into the same film and so much has been written about the Leigh-Olivier engagement it would make "The Prime Minister" a box office natural. In the meantime William Keighley, who was to have directed Olivier, has been assigned to "Torrid Zone" with Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien.

One of the most surprising Christmas remembrances received by the Hollywood press was a minature fire extinguisher from Alan Hale, who is prouder of his "inventions" than of his movie performances.

Alan, you know, invented the famous Hale sliding theater seats (the only complaint is that they're so comfortable the customers go to sleep) and his latest gadget is this extinguisher, so tiny you can operate it with one hand.

In the meantime, he's still one of our best movie actors. In fact, Warners think he is so good in "The Fighting 69th" they've handed him one of the three top roles in "The Sea Hawk" with Errol Flynn.

'Rulers of the Sea' For Olympia Screen

Opening on the Washington St. Olympia screen tomorrow is Producer-Director Frank Lloyd's magnificent sea story, "Rulers of the Sea," which stars Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., with Margaret Lockwood and Will Fyffe.

On the same bill will be "The Dead End Kids On Dress Parade," featuring, of course, the Dead End Kids.

'Four Wives' Film Natural

By PEGGY DOYLE

Most natural-appearing family on the screen are the Lemps, nee Lanes, first introduced to moviegoers in the Warners' production, "Four Daughters," and now come back to us on the Metropolitan screen as old friends in "Four Wives."

Assured of a warm welcome, this newest chapter in the lives of this altogether delightful family is so completely satisfying that it seems likely the story will go on and on with the Lemps living to a ripe, old screen-age.

All of which is certainly not according to Doyle, who can take or leave — in fact, give you — most screen families after one feature length cross-section of their domestic lives. The Hollywood run-of-the-mill screen families are usually as authentic a flesh-and-blood fireside grouping as cafe society is like the austere, tiara-ed aristocracy of the diamond horseshoe era (the Metropolitan Opera not the Lilly Rose concept).

But the Lemps—they are different, diverting and downright human as a 1940 version of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women." They live and breath and have their being in an everyday world, even as you and I. Their problems are as homespun and their joys as much an occasion for old-fashioned, prideful pleasure on the part of the entire family as are yours and mine.

The Lemp daughters, as you must know, are the luscious Lane sisters Priscilla, Rosemary and Lola and Gale Page. Claude Rains plays "Papa" Lemp, a crusty but warm-hearted music professor, and May Robson, the girls' understanding, forthright Aunt Etta.

In "Four Daughters," you'll recall, Lola was married to the precocious Frank McHugh (wearing a newly sprouted mustache). Gale Page was the wife of Dick Foran, florist with an occupational disease—hay fever. Priscilla, married to the mercurial John Garfield whom she thought she loved, was an unhappy widow at the final closeup.

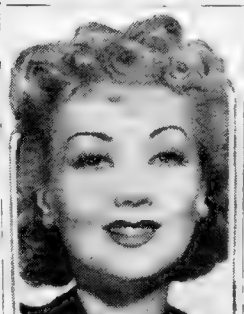
As "Four Wives" unreels, it is tragically revealed that on the day she becomes engaged to handsome Jeffrey Lynn, who has always loved her, she learns she is to be the mother of Garfield's child. The discovery raises the ghost of her ill-starred but gifted young husband, casting a shadow over the newly-engaged pair.

How this shadow is dispelled through the practical psychology of a brilliant, young physician, Eddie Albert, is one of the most human touches that earmark this thoroughly human story. Another is pretty Rosemary's angling that brings him into the picture and within listening distance of his own wedding-bells. Albert is excellent and so, too, is Rosemary Lane, who does her best screen acting to date in this one.

The always dependable Frank McHugh comes through with some swell comedy sequences, aided and abetted by his wife, Lola, who, just as they are about to adopt a baby, makes the discovery a bundle of happiness is routed in their direction.

Also well met are Damon Runyan's Joe and Ethel Turp, who leap out of this noted American humorist's typewriter to co-star in Metro's merry comedy, "Joe and Ethel Turp Call on the President."

In this engaging co-feature on the Met screen this week, William Gargan and Ann Sothern play the Turps and Lewis Stone, the President. Walter Brennan is the cast of it all the call on the President



ANN SOTHERN is the Ethel Turp of "Joe and Ethel Turp Call on the President," now on the Met's screen.

'Invisible Stripes' Triumph for George Raft

Jane Bryan, who is no tyro at picture-stealing, remembers how she walked away with the acting laurels in the Paul-Muni-starring "We Are Not Alone"?), has the table reversed in "Invisible Stripes," the Paramount and Fenway feature film of the week.

In "Invisible Stripes" the Brothers Warner at long last do right by Brother Raft and the former patent-leather-haired finale-hopper from New York's East Side comes through with an elegant performance.

As an ex-con, George Raft seems almost too good — or is it too bad? —to be true for that rumored altar-date with the celluloid queen lovely Norma Shearer. Despite his prison record, the audience if not the men who can give him a job but dont or give him one too quickly is with him to a customer.

As an actor, Raft can be truly said to come of age in this Warner release. He plays his part with sincerity and restraint, winning sympathy all along the way.

William Holden, the screen's erstwhile "Golden Boy," plays his younger brother, whose temper pops like corn over a working gasjet and has the protective Raft himself jumpy as a fretting mother-hen.

It is the younger lad's hot-headed despair over the continued postponements of his marriage to the devoted Jane Bryan that finally provokes Raft to take a detour from the straight and narrow. This involves joining up with the bank-robbing Humphrey Bogart, Paul Kelly and Marc Lawrence, as menacing a trio as you'll encounter outside of Alcatraz.

When Raft's split equals what it takes to buy a garage for his brother he quits the mob but it doesn't go vice versa. Trapped in their next bank-holdup, Bogart involves the innocent youth by using his garage for a getaway.

To [illegible] his brother, Raft risks [illegible] and gets [illegible] of the [illegible] mobsters.

Lloyd Bacon's skilled direction, Warren Duff's [illegible] dialogue, "Henry Goes to Arizona" starring Ernest Hallers outstanding jam Frank Morgan, [illegible] cinematography and we repeat with a tire[illegible]

By IZOLA FORRESTER

NEW YORK is the oddest place. Unless you are entirely familiar with its ways and antics and, also, its safety zones of the spirit, so to speak, it can frighten the daylights out of a stranger. Especially if said stranger happens to be fresh from the hunt abroad and has escaped the hounds by one long jump overseas.

It takes plenty of time and rest here to get over the sense of pursuit, of spies at your heels, of death and peril lurking for you just around the corner.

Michael Nolan drove a Fourth Avenue bus. He was young and cheerful, with the friendliness of the Hebrides in his blue eyes and wide, ingratiating smile. And he took a real interest in his passengers, those who rode regularly. There might be a war or two in the other part of the world, but Michael hoped to be married by Spring, and the girl he had picked worked in a millinery shop up in the Fifties. She always waited for Michael's bus, which was how their love had grown and blossomed. He had liked her name first off when he heard it, Maureen Blake.

The bus had been jammed around noon that day when he found the black satchel. So thick they had crowded that he had not noticed the special passenger who carried it at all, but when they had all thinned out at the terminal, Michael got out to stretch himself, and when he came back there was the satchel under one of the seats.

It was made of old Russian leather and locked. Michael chucked it under his own seat to hand in later at the lost and found department of the bus line. They would keep it for thirty days, and then, if it was not claimed, it would be given back to him for his own. That was the New York law. Finders, keepers, after waiting 30 days, watching the ads and doing all you could to locate the owner. The department attended to all that, and Michael had about forgotten it, until the end of the month came, and one of the men told him to step around and get it.

He was taking Maureen to a movie that night, so he carried the old satchel up with him when he called for her. "Look what I won," he said laughingly. "I think it must have come out of the Ark."

Maureen examined it. "Maybe one of the refugees lost it," she suggested. "It looks funny, doesn't it, and it's locked too."

A FORTUNE!

"Give it to me a minute, I'll fix that." Michael zipped out his pocket knife and slit the old leather neatly along the top. Inside was a parcel wrapped in an old velvet skirt. Along the bottom when Maureen shook it out and examined it, was a fine hand sewn pattern of gold thread.

"It's foreign workmanship, Michael," she said. "Beautifully embroidered, look!"

"Look yourself," counseled Michael as he cut the cord that bound the parcel and spread open its contents. They both sat speechless at the array. Heavy gold necklaces and bracelets, with insets of jewels. Rings and earrings in plenty. Two gold snuff boxes, their tops thickly set with small diamonds. Two miniatures, rimmed in pearls, with small portraits of a woman and a man. Maureen took these in her hands gently.

"Isn't she lovely, Michael? Maybe they were sweethearts, who knows? It looks like Russian stuff, doesn't it?"

"Whatever it is, darling, it's our own," Michael replied flatly. "That's the law here. We can sell off the whole bunch if it's real, and get enough cash to be married any time we please."

Maureen shook her head. "I wouldn't want to do that. It would be bad luck to us, Michael. This isn't just jewelry. It is keepsakes and such, Michael dear. We must try to find the owner. Maybe it was stolen."

Michael made fruitless inquiries. Then he took the whole lot to a reputable dealer, who told him the work was Byzantine and old Russian. The best way to realize anything from it was to have the jewels removed and sell gold and gems separately. It would bring up in the thousands easily.

"But there'd be no luck to it for us, Michael," Maureen persisted. "I'll write an ad myself that may attract the owners and make them feel at ease."

So she put in her own ad, wording it enticingly.

The Cast of Characters in "No Questions Asked"

MICHAEL, who drives a bus in which he finds an old satchel.
MAUREEN, his fiancee, who decides to advertise for the owner.
TWO REFUGEES.

"Found: Black satchel on Fourth ave. bus, Dec. 11. Owner must identify contents. No questions asked. Call Brunswick 4-2243."

The ad ran for four days, and then one afternoon Maureen was called at the shop. A woman's voice spoke, very low, in broken English. She mentioned the two miniatures and a little golden egg specially. There could be no mistake, Maureen told Michael joyfully that night. They carried the old satchel down to the address given, off Washington sq. south. It turned out to be a small novelty shop where they sold Russian dolls and trinkets and handsome gowns. The man behind the counter gave them an address on a nearby street.

The face on the pillow was almost a perfect replica of the man's face in the miniature.

A STRANGE STORY

They found their way to an old brownstone house, remodeled into studio apartments. Up four flights to the front suite. The man and woman here seemed very shy and suspicious of them. They listened and consulted each other with long glances. But when Michael opened the satchel and emptied its contents, they gave little hushed cries of delight and relief, handling the articles eagerly, speaking in low voices in Russian. But neither one had the face of the two in the miniatures. Maureen noticed this at once. He was tall and thin, with deepset, weary eyes and a small iron gray mustache. The woman was also middleaged and of the servant class, not the peasant type, but like an upper house servant, trained and trusted. It was she who spoke English.

"You have been very unselfish and kind to try and find us," she told them earnestly. "You cannot possibly know the good you have done. It was my brother who keeps the shop, but I cannot tell even him. You see we only hold these things in trust for another, a sacred trust, we feel. As you have perhaps guessed, my husband and I are refugees. We are from Austria, and before that, we came from old Russia. We have been only refugees, it seems, for many, many years, in one land and another, in China and in France and Switzerland, and last in Austria. After the death of our two—she hesitated for the right word and chose another—"our employers, we were left with a most sacred charge by them. Will you please step quietly this way. I think you would understand our position better, for I must trust you both."

Maureen and Michael followed her on tiptoe to the small bedroom in the rear. There was a child asleep here. Maureen looked and caught her breath. The face on the pillow was almost a perfect replica of the man's face in the miniature, only that this was a boy of perhaps seven. They returned to the living room. The man had prepared tea for them and served it in tall thin glasses.

"His parents disappeared after their arrest," the woman went on slowly. "We have learned since that both are dead. Things have happened like that very suddenly over there recently. We, who were only servants, escaped arrest, and I said the boy was my own son. I had dyed his hair black and we made our escape after many months, in very great danger. That was why we did not dare to advertise, for these things, or make inquiries. It might have led to the police discovering who he is. Look at this."

She pressed a secret spring in the golden egg and it opened on her palm in halves. Inside was a small miniature of a baby.

"That was when he was little," she explained tenderly. "It was his mother's Easter gift to his father. Their names and his are there in Russian. Some day this will serve to identify him if the time should come. You see, now, fortunately, he is believed to have died and we dare not change that belief. His whole family was wiped out in the Revolution excepting his father, who escaped with my husband's aid. In China he married one of the old nobility, my mistress, and they left for Paris. Now, their son has no one in the world but us. We are very grateful to you and beg you to tell no one about us."

MAUREEN'S REWARD

They went down the narrow stairs in silence and walked across the park. "Well, you certainly run up against queer people in New York," said Michael cheerfully. "But you were right to advertise, and I don't regret is, even though we got no reward out of it."

"Yes, we did, Michael," Maureen took a pair of old pendant earrings from her hand bag, set with large pear shaped emeralds. "She slipped these into my hand at the very last. I didn't want to take them, but she said they were a present from the boy's own mother, that she would wish me to have them. Aren't they wonderful? I don't know where I'd ever get the chance to wear them——"

Michael's arm pressed her close to him. "You wouldn't, eh? Got no imagination whatsoever, have you? You'll be wearing them at your own wedding soon, and you'll look like a princess yourself in them. And the day will come when you'll be handing them over to your own daughter for her weddding."

"Michael, hush," she begged. He kissed her fingertips, and drew in a deep sigh of content, looking about him at the skyline toward Fifth ave., at the lights and the beauty and safety of it all.

"I wonder who the little fellow really is," he said, thoughtfully.

THE END.

When we are finally led away to our little padded cell, our mental condition will undoubtedly come of reading of love life in America, especially as it goes on in Hollywood, and in those New York circles known as society saloon, and otherwise.

Friends are commencing to look at us askance when they observe us in such eccentricities as dancing up and down in wild rages.

To our pals who are worrying we give the reassuring news that alienists doubt our insanity will ever take violent form.

We will not name names. Probably you have your own private list. By the way, which do you hate the most, the they-are-not—(or are)—engageds, the they-are-not—(or are)—marrieds, or the they-are-not—(or are)—divorceds?

Personally, we hate them all in about the same proportion, but we hate even more the split-out, or legally divorced parties who are always going to be reconciled, or are not going to be reconciled Naturally, we are in favor of reconciliations, but what we say is, let 'em reconcile, or not, with less shilly-shallying and less noise about it.

There was a time when these matters were treated with some reserve and great delicacy, beginning with the engagement to marry. That was usually announced in dignified terms to those who might be interested, or an announcement sent to the public prints, which gave it whatever attention the prominence of the parties to the prospective union merited.

If it chanced that the parties concerned discovered during their engagement that they would be suckers to marry, the engagement was broken, and the breaking was handled as a strictly private affair. They just quietly went their separate ways and made new bets, but the last thing they wanted was publicity. That is the first thing the engagement breakers of today want.

If a couple did get married, the incident was usually as widely heralded as possible.

We admit that was a terribly conventional period. Again you may not believe it, but in that time it was considered a social irregularity for either party to a divorce proceeding to announce before the divorce came off an engagement to marry anothes

We are not objecting on moral grounds. Our grunt is about their using the noble institution of matrimony in its various phases as hooks on which to hang their exhibitionism. In short, we are good and sick of them

The old customs of reserve and dignity with reference to marriage still prevail among a certain class. These people are called ladies and gentlemen.

Stock Prices Steady in Slow Trading

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—Rallying support was feeble in today's stock market but there was a notable lack of selling insistence.

Activity slackened after a moderately active opening. Gains and losses of minor fractions were about even and numerous shares held unchanged.

Among resistant issues were Bethlehem Steel, American Can, General Electric, Standard Oil of N. J., Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Anaconda and Union Carbide.

Lacking rising vigor were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Glenn Martin, Douglas Aircraft, duPont, Eastman Kodak and Southern Railway.

While re-investment buying by those who established income tax losses last month again proved a stabilizing influence, the general run of traders seemed inclined to await clearer signs of what Congress will do and how business will act over the next few months.

Selective improvement was witnessed in the bond department. European securities markets just about held their own. Commodities were a shade mixed.

British Loan to Finland Rumored

LONDON, Jan. 5 (INS)—British financial experts regard as highly significant an entry in the weekly return of the Bank of England which shows an increase of £10,000,000 (about $50,000,000 at par) in an item identified merely as "other accounts," the Daily Express said today.

According to the Express the last time such large increases appeared was when the government opened a £10,000,000 credit to Czechoslovakia a year ago. The paper added that experts are now speculating as to whether the new figure represents a loan to Finland or some other country.

D. & H. Places Big Locomotive Order

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP) — A $4,000,000 order for locomotives by the Delaware & Hudson was added today to the rail equipment industry's backlog of orders.

The D & H. ordered 20 Mallet-type engines from the American Locomotive Co. It was described as the first substantial order for motive power the road has placed since 1918.

In addition, the Pennsylvania R. R. placed orders for 50,000 tons of new steel rails. Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co., U. S. Steel subsidiary, was allotted 25,000 tons of the order, Bethlehem Steel 22,000 tons and Illinois Steel Co., also a U. S. Steel unit, was given 3000 tons.

W. T. Grant Co.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—W. T. Grant Co., operator of a chain of variety stores serving 440 communities, announced today a final dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock for the fiscal year ending Jan. 31. The disbursement is payable Jan. 23 to holders of record Jan. 11 and brings total payments for the fiscal year to $1.90.

Carloadings Drop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (INS)—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended Dec. 30 totaled 550,270 cars, a decrease of 104,547 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 50,815 cars above the corresponding week in 1938, the Association of American Railroads announced today.

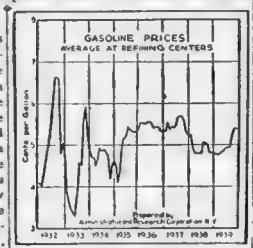
State St. Approves Plan for B. & M.

The best thing that could happen for the railroad; for the bondholders; for the general public; for the section it serves; and for the junior security owners . . . That is the consensus of State Street opinion regarding the proposed Boston & Maine Railroad refunding plan . . .



CONSTRUCTIVE . . . Results which accrue to present bondholders are twofold . . . They assure themselves receivership possibilities are removed insofar as they relate to nearby maturities . . . While obtaining an exchange for cash and new bonds with a higher value than the market is now placing on the old bonds . . . These considerations in addition to a picture of the new capital setup and the effect on the prior preferred stock feature a current study of the situation . . . Entitled "A Constructive Plan for Boston & Maine" published by Schirmer, Atherton & Co., members of the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges . . .

ON THE BASIS . . . Of net railway operating income for 1939, estimated in the B & M study by the Boston brokers, it is calculated fixed charges would have been covered under the plan by about 1.80 times . . . It is also pointed out that there were included in 1939 operating expenses approximately $852,000 of non-recurring charges . . . These were applicable to expenditures in connection with the Federal government's "make work" program of 1934 . . . The ICC gave the road permission to spread the cost over a period of years, ending in 1939 . . . Without this item 1939 net income would have covered fixed charges under the proposed plan by nearly twice . . .

SPEAKING . . . Of rails, reminds us that the belaboring the group has taken of late is undeserved . . . On the basis of facts posted in the record books of the market place and statisticians . . . It is our opinion that a good case for the rails can be built . . . One justifying recent price behavior and warranting faith in their future . . . There is no need for synthetic optimism . . . And there is certainly nothing calling for apologies . . . Summed up in advance, we think good railroad stocks deserve investor and speculator attention just as long as a general bullish attitude prevails . . .

THREE POINTS . . . Stand out in favor of rail shares . . . First earnings lifted in the late months of 1939 . . . Better earnings for 3 or even 6 months do not justify, or call for a runaway price trend . . . Stock prices move best, fastest, when fortified by many months of improved earnings . . . Which makes 1940 the year of possible big price gains . . . Second the market as a whole did not outrun rails in the last general upswing . . . The September push found rails scampering from 26 to 36 on the Dow-Jones average . . . A roughly 36 per cent rise compared with the approximate 18 per cent affair of industrials . . .

THE GAIN . . . of rail shares reduced to percentages is even more impressive when it is remembered that a point gain is almost equivalent to $1 . . . Whereas it takes about 2 points to equal a dollar in the industrial average . . . The third point is based on recent reactions . . . Which found the whole list retreating steadily for months . . . Rather widely for some industrial leaders . . . Yet rails refused to break wide open . . . About a point a month, or from 36 to 32 on the Dow average . . . In compiling our figures we used actual hourly or closing figures . . . Not daily highs or lows, which are rarely registered at one particular time . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . It is interesting to note that the rail average is now pushing through a trend line angling downward from the September high . . . It tried once in October and once in November to break through but failed . . . Industrials are through their comparable trend line . . . And entitled to any reaction seen this week after the successful penetration . . . Some of the aircraft stocks are running into the sort of difficulties prophesied here weeks ago . . . When we said new capital requirements would call for stock issues and other financing methods likely to prove burdensome . . .

MARKETWISE . . . Nothing has taken place to dampen bullish enthusiasm . . . While it is true the public is largely confining its interest to tape watching good investment demand is obviously present . . . Market trends live on success . . . And once the path of least resistance is proven to be upwards public buyers will step in . . . Until then they will undoubtedly follow their usual procedure of looking on as prices creep through the early stages of advance . . . For our part we will adhere to the buying stand which has prevailed throughout recent weeks of dragging market action . . .

BOARDROOM BRIEFS . . . Gasoline prices at refining centers are an altogether different matter than at filling stations . . . Public ideas of the amount received by refiners fail to take into account items such as transportation, distribution and tax costs . . . Particularly the latter . . . The chart shows the comparatively low level prevailing . . . And explains why it is some producers are so hard put to make a decent profit . . . And it also tells the story of intermittent attempts by the industry to control supplies . . . Which as we pointed out early this week are currently thwarted by fuel oil considerations.

SEC PROBE CUTS DIVIDEND

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5 (AP)—Transamerica Corporation has declared a semi-annual dividend of 25 cents a share, payable Jan. 31 to stockholders of record Jan. 15.

The dividend equaled that paid last July when the corporation reported it was trimming payments to stockholders because the securities commission investigation was increasing expenses.

Previously, the stock was on an annual basis of 75 cents a share.

PROSPERITY ERA SEEN AHEAD

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Jan. 5 (AP)—Charles E. Wilson, new president of General Electric Co., said here that the United States is "entering an even greater era of sound business expansion and consequent better conditions for all" than the 1920's.

Speaking before a group of operating and sales executives of the company here, Wilson termed the '20's "a period marked by the success of private initiative."

Deposits Jump

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—Member bank deposits for reserve account with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York jumped around $307,000,000 the past week as Christmas spending money returned to banking institutions, the bank's condition statement disclosed today. Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation rose about $2,000,000.

Retail Trade Holds Gains After Spurt

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP) — Showing but little reaction from the holiday spurt, the past week's retail trade continued to run well ahead of the same period last year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today in its weekly survey.

Sales comparisons with a year ago recorded estimated gains of 4 to 10 per cent, compared with 2 to 6 per cent in the preceding week.

"Retail stores," the review said, "usually dependent on clearances reported an exceptionally strong demand for heavy apparel and other winter necessities.

"Merchants who had launched January white sales reported initial results fairly satisfactory, although strong consumer interest in apparel was evidently tending to withdraw some volume from these departments.

"Despite the unseasonal weather in December and the slowness with which retail purchases of winter goods got under way, merchants were generally cheerful about inventory conditions.

"All regions reported some year-to-year improvement, the most substantial being that for the South and the mildest that for the Pacific Coast."

Kendall Co. New Member Of Institute

The Kendall Co. of Boston, which manufactures textiles and surgical dressings, has become a member of the Industrial Research Institute, it is announced by the Institute from its headquarters in the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West 39th st., New York.

Warner Eustis, staff officer on research of the Kendall Co., has been designated to represent that organization as its official representative at institute meetings.

The Industrial Research Institute, which is affiliated with the National Research Council, was organized several years ago to promote, through the co-operation of its members, constant improvement of methods and more efficient and more resultful management in industrial research.

The members of the institute comprise industrial concerns which maintain research laboratories.

N. E. Rails Win Rate Reductions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized railroads operating over indirect routes from Maine and New Brunswick, Canada, to eastern destinations, to continue in effect reduced rates on potatoes and other vegetables.

Some time ago the ICC granted the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, Canadian Pacific Railway, Boston & Maine Railroad and carriers participating in their tariffs temporary authority to reduce the rates This authority was made permanent in today's order.

The reduced rates, the ICC said, are necessary to enable the Bangor & Aroostook, Canadian Pacific, Boston & Maine and associated roads to operate on a rate parity with competing direct routes. The direct routes previously had reduced their rates to meet truck-water competition.

STUDEBAKER STOCK DEAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker Corp., and Harold S. Vance, board chairman, have exercised options to purchase 25,000 shares each of Studebaker common from the company at $5.73 a share. Directors have given them three years in which to pay for the stock.

Studebaker common closed today in the New York Stock Exchange at $6.62 a share.

1—Legal

CITY OF BOSTON
POLICE DEPARTMENT
Office of the Police Commissioner
154 Berkeley Street
January 5, 1940

In accordance with the provisions of Section 1 of Chapter 392 of the Acts of 1930, as amended, and in order to remedy existing traffic conditions and reduce the number of cruising taxicabs, and in order to establish a system for the cleaning, inspection and repair of taxicabs, the rules and regulations heretofore established by the Police Commissioner for the City of Boston are hereby amended by adding, at the end of Section 2 of said rules and regulations, the following new heading and section, said new section to take effect February 1, 1940, at 4.00 A.M.:

LIMITATION OF OPERATION AND CLEANING, INSPECTION AND REPAIR OF TAXICABS

Section 2A—Every licensed hackney carriage operating as a taxicab shall bear a medallion number assigned by the police Commissioner. The medallions bearing such numbers shall be furnished by the Police Commissioner and shall be made of different colors according to the following table:

(1) All medallions bearing the numbers 1, 6, 11 and every other number ascertained by adding 5 or a multiple of 5 to the number 1 shall be colored red.
(2) All medallions bearing the numbers 2, 7, 12 and every other number ascertained by adding 5 or a multiple of 5 to the number 2 shall be colored yellow.
(3) All medallions bearing the numbers 3, 8, 13 and every other number ascertained by adding 5 or a multiple of 5 to the number 3 shall be colored blue.
(4) All medallions bearing the numbers 4, 9, 14 and every other number ascertained by adding 5 or a multiple of 5 to the number 4 shall be colored green
(5) All medallions bearing the numbers 5, 10, 15 and every other number ascertained by adding 5 or a multiple of 5 to the number 5 shall be colored white.

No taxicab bearing a red medallion shall be operated during the twenty-four hours immediately following the hour of 4.00 A.M. of any Monday in any week during the license year. The owner of each taxicab bearing a red medallion shall cause said taxicab to be thoroughly cleaned, inspected, and repaired on each such Monday.

No taxicab bearing a yellow medallion shall be operated during the twenty-four hours immediately following the hour of 4:00 A.M. of any Tuesday in any week during the license year. The owner of each taxicab bearing a yellow medallion shall cause said taxicab to be thoroughly cleaned, inspected, and repaired on each such Tuesday.

No taxicab bearing a blue medallion shall be operated during the twenty-four hours immediately following the hour of 4.00 A.M. of any Wednesday in any week during the license year. The owner of each taxicab bearing a blue medallion shall cause said taxicab to be thoroughly cleaned, inspected, and repaired on each such Wednesday

No taxicab bearing a green medallion shall be operated during the twenty-four hours immediately following the hour of 4.00 A.M. of any Thursday in any week during the license year. The owner of each taxicab bearing a green medallion shall cause said taxicab to be thoroughly cleaned, inspected, and repaired on each such Thursday.

No taxicab bearing a white medallion shall be operated during the twenty-four hours immediately following the hour of 4.00 A.M. of any Friday in any week during the license year. The owner of each taxicab bearing a white medallion shall cause said taxicab to be thoroughly cleaned, inspected, and repaired on each such Friday.

On the first of each month the owner of each taxicab shall file with the inspector of carriages a report, on a form supplied by the said inspector of carriages, certifying under oath the fact that said taxicab was thoroughly cleaned, inspected and repaired on each of the days of the previous month on which the said taxicab was not operated under the provisions of this rule, and setting forth the results of said inspections and the repairs made.

The above provisions shall not apply on legal holidays, nor to the hours of midnight to 4.00 A.M. of days immediately following such holidays, and all taxicabs may be operated on said legal holidays and the aforementioned hours following such holidays, regardless of medallion color.

In so far as possible, the Police Commissioner shall assign consecutive medallion numbers to taxicabs owned by the same person.

The operation of Section 2A may be suspended, in whole or in part, for such period of time as may be designated by the Police Commissioner, by an order to that effect, issued by the said Police Commissioner, whenever, in his opinion, public convenience and necessity require the same, and the said Police Commissioner shall suspend the operation of Section 2A whenever the number of licensed hackney carriages in operation on a particular day shall be less than 900.

JOSEPH F. TIMILTY
Police Commissioner for the City of Boston.

CITY OF BOSTON
POLICE DEPARTMENT
Office of the Police Commissioner
154 Berkeley Street
January 5, 1940

ORDER DECREASING LIMIT FOR THE NUMBER OF HACKNEY LICENSES IN THE CITY OF BOSTON HERETOFORE ESTABLISHED.

In accordance with Section 6 of Chapter 392 of the Acts of 1930, as amended by Section 1 of Chapter 280 of the Acts of 1934, the limit for the number of hackney licenses to be issued under said Section is hereby decreased to twelve hundred; provided, however, that this Order shall not affect, in any way, the rights of any existing licensee to any annual renewal of his license under the provisions of said Section 6 until further action by the Police Commissioner. licenses may be granted to the number heretofore established, except that no further original licenses shall be granted until the number of hackney licenses outstanding shall have been reduced to less than twelve hundred by cancellation or revocation or the failure of holders of licenses to apply for renewals, and thereafter hackney licenses may be granted only up to a total not exceeding twelve hundred. This Order is promulgated after reasonable notice published in the daily newspapers of the City of Boston, and a public hearing held on November 28, 1939, and shall be effective as of January 6, 1940, at 7:45 o'clock A. M.

JOSEPH F. TIMILTY,
Police Commissioner for the City of Boston.

AUSTEN LAKE

Harvard and Tech Crews Prepare for Winter Grind

THIS IS THE TIME OF THE YEAR WHEN several score of Harvard and Technology oarsmen of an exceedingly he-man type, report for indoor training and sit in stationary boats in the middle of a housed-in-pool and swish the waters without budging an inch. Soon now, they will begin the strenuous daily rehearsals which will cram six months of boresome labor into a few minutes of concentrated action in next Spring's regattas.

It opens one of the weirdest chapters in college sport. For, I must admit after all these years of attending the water carnivals at New London, the Charles and Poughkeepsie, I have never been impregnated with the charm of 8-oared rowing. It occupies much expensive real estate, consumes many man-hours and so much money and emotion—for what? For a few quick spidering spurts and a minimum of shoreline interest.

Rowing has defied my appreciation, like heel-and-toe racing—a strange depravity in which the contestant agitates his torso in a manner to suggest he has a lizard under his shirt and wishes to twitch it loose. It has—and I'll be hearing about this from the college Vox Pops—a great deal of mystery and flubdub about the skill required to give just the correct directional twist to the handle of the blade, and about the fine nervous control required to keep the spine sloped, the wrists angled and the knees thrusting after the fun has gone out of the contest and the athlete's insides are jumbled in a giant ache. Like Marathon shuffling, putting the shot, chinning the bar and weight lifting, it taxes the imagination!

Technical Flubdub

WHEN SPRING COMES AGAIN AND THE ICE goes out of the Charles, the Harvard and Tech navies will take their paper-shell ships on aimless cruises up and down the river, a-heaving and a-hauling in perfect rhythm to the howls of under-sized jockeys who sit aft with the tiller ropes. It is an exacting sport in which every athlete learns to breath in uniform gasps lest he inadvertently hiccough and sink the shell, which is frail as fiddle and light as a politician's promise.

These boats run into considerable money, especially since novice coxswains sometimes ram their vessels against a bridge buttress with the noise of collapsing peach baskets. Or somebody sinks a craft with a sneeze.

A great deal has been printed about the technicalities of rowing, such as the "spacing between paddles," the "length of the blades in the water," etc. so that rowing writers' scripts are full of "washing-out," "shooting the wrist," "rushing the slides" and kindred persiflage. And I think the most graphic discription of an 8-oared race was one filed by a slightly lushed reporter at Poughkeepsie some years ago, when, stationed at an observation post he dictated into his office phone, "Here they come. There they go!" That and nothing more!

"O Gee! O Gosh!"

STILL THERE MUST BE A FASCINATION to college rowing. Otherwise the lean and limber athletes of a cultured-stevedore type would not spend two hours a day for six months a year, hauling and squirming with their popping eyes glued to the rear of each other's necks and sometimes finishing their contests with sick stomachs and nervous skin prickles.

I once asked Reginald Jenney, Harvard's old 135-pound stroke oar, what he thought about during the races and he replied, "At the quarter I am apt to think about chocolate walnut sundaes with scoops of marshmallow frosting. At the half I may dream about a double, box-spring bed with a swan's-down mattress and cool, freshly laundered sheets. But in the last half I just think, O gee! O gosh! In time to the rattle of the earlocks while red spots big as pennies dance before my eyes." It must be fun!

B. U. Did It the Hard Way

IN PROPER COLLEGE CIRCLES, LIKE YALE, Princeton, Columbia, Harvard and Tech, you spend the winter indoors under a glass conservatory with live water flowing on both sides and yanking to the beat of a radio orchestra. I have heard, but cannot vouch for its truth, that there are flunkies standing on the runways with glasses of mineral water, crowned with sprigs of mint and French mirrors on the walls to throw back the athletes' images. Anyway, they don't just go out vulgarly and start to row on the river—except at Boston University which is a comparitive jumps-up in college rowing.

I am thinking how two years ago B. U. took up rowing with only a rudimentary notion of how to handle their matchwood boats. They floated their craft, crept gingerly overside and at the word "heave-O" fetched a goshawful perk on their beanpoles fit to yank the giblets out of the shell and set it to teetering so that all the sailors let loose their handles and grabbed the rail for safety. Well, after spooning up a little headway, the B. U. boat spidered off in a cloud of spray, paced by their coach, Jim Manning, along the shore in an automobile.

Happily none of the B. U. fleet tipped over. Because if they had, there was no mahogany launch with a male orderly to throw out inflated mattresses and fish the lads up for hot dosages from thermos flasks. And when the B. U. crew came sailing home again, Dr. John Harmon, the athletic director, was plainly relieved to count nine men in each boat, including the jockey. That was fun, though as Harvard and Tech rowing ethics go, a vulgar and declasse kind of fun!

TRACK STOCKHOLDERS TO REMAIN UNNAMED

By JACK CONWAY

Supreme Court decisions handed down in similar types of cases are expected to prevent the names of the stockholders of Massachusetts horse and dog tracks from becoming public.

Under a recent rule of the State Racing Commission, horse and dog tracks seeking dates are obliged to file a list of stockholders.

It is understood that Suffolk Downs, already granted 60 days of racing, and the two dog tracks operating at Wonderland Park in Revere have complied with this rule.

No application for racing dates has yet been made by Dighton. As a result, it has been necessary for Dighton to furnish the racing commission with a list of stockholders.

NOT PUBLIC RECORD

In similar cases where it has been necessary to furnish special information to an official body to be considered on the matter of the conduct of a particular business, the Supreme Court has ruled that this information is not a public record.

It held in the case of records of pawnshops that they were merely for the controlling board, and were not to be given to the public.

The statutes, it has been pointed out, also throw considerable protection around the rights of stockholders provided they comply with all laws and regulations.

In the matter of inheritance tax returns filed with the Commission of Corporations, they are not a matter of public record even though it is necessary that they should be filed.

At the time of the death of former President Calvin Coolidge, the inventory of the estate was not filed in court.

Instead it was filed at the office of Tax Commr. Long, and the tax was paid.

This complied with the State law, and the public was not permitted to see the inventory of the estate.

GOVERNOR KNOWS THEM

The Supreme Court contends in most of these cases that as long as the proper public officials get the necessary information papers containing private information should not be used to satisfy public curiosity, and possibly cause an injury to the person required to furnish the information.

Governor Saltonstall was responsible for the rule of the commission that insists upon the names of owners of stock in horse and dog tracks.

The Governor intends that no licenses shall issue to tracks that are owned by improper people.

Through the Racing Commission, the Governor now has access to the list of stockholders at Suffolk Downs and at the two dog tracks operating at Wonderland Park.

The fact Suffolk Downs has already been granted 60 days of racing would indicate that the East Boston track has satisfied all requirements of the racing commission and the Governor.

SHOOTING STARTED IT

There has been a hearing on the Wonderland application, but no dates have yet been awarded.

Dighton is not expected to apply for dates until it completes a reorganization caused by the shooting of Eddie O'Hare.

It was the O'Hare shooting that caused the Governor and racing commission to demand information as to the names of the stockholders of horse and dog tracks.

"HERE'S A GOOD ONE"—Harold Bates, Brookline high hockey coach, amuses Frank Driscoll with funny stories during hockey practice at Arena. Brookline, leading Eastern Mass. League, faces Hudson tonight in one of four games at Arena.

EASTERN MASS. LOOP OPENS HOCKEY WHIRL

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

Schoolboy hockey will provide its followers with another crowded week-end. The action gets under way tonight when the Eastern Mass. League convenes at the Arena a half step ahead of the Greater Bostons and the Bay Staters.

All eyes will be centered on the Brookline and Dedham tilts at the Arena tonight, and both clubs should continue to rule the roost when the Arena lights are dimmed.

Brookline, whipped by Dedham last week, will try to hit the come-back trail against Hudson in the final game of the evening, while Dedham should find Natick soft in its efforts to keep up with the Wealthy Towners in the pennant race. The other two games on the program find Somerville facing Lexington and Malden meeting Brockton.

KIRRANE LEADS PACK

Brookline's only defeat of the season dropped Bucky Bates' outfit onto a tie for the top notch in the standings, as Bill Kirrane lost ground in the individual scoring race. Kirrane, leading the pack, should pace the team to another victory over Hudson.

Dedham's Bob Davidson, Al Aylward and Frank O'Brien should feel at home against Natick, which dropped a decision to Somerville last week. This first line trio dumped Brookline heartily and may carry Nick DeSalvo's club to its second pennant in a row.

Tomorrow afternoon, Waltham and Needham high schools will head the Bay State parade into the St. Botolph st. ice house as they continue their duel for honors in that circuit. Waltham will face defending Champion Framingham, while Needham meets B. C. High.

EAGLETS THREAT

In the other two contests, Wellesley will try to keep up with the leaders by tipping Watertown while Quincy completes the card against Walpole.

Perley Grant, Hec Rousseau and Bob Connor should easily pave the way for the Watch City crowd against a comparatively weak Framingham, but Needham's forces may find the going a bit stiffer against Jim Moran's Eaglets.

Bob Mason, Moran's star, has developed into a serious threat in the scoring columns and unless Mal MacLeod, Don Lumsden and Larry Arra keep on their toes, Mason may turn in the upset of the day. Last week, the B. C. high gridder scored five goals against Watertown with the classy Bill Shannon in the stringa.

Tomorrow's Garden show will find Melrose and Arlington clashing for the leadership of the Greater Boston in the feature with Belmont vs. Rindge; Cambridge Latin vs. Newton and Stoneham vs. Medford completing the card.

ARLINGTON FAVORED

Arlington, boasting an undefeated record, will be slightly favored to top Harold Poole's club. The Arlington first line of Bob Sanders, Art Blanchard and Ed Burns has come along fast since the start of the season and looms as a serious threat to Melrose hopes of climbing into a top place tie.

But the Red Raiders boast a front wave that takes a back seat to few in Russ Priestly, Charlie Holt and George Noyes. This set of speedsters can and may turn the tide on Coach Charlie Downs' pennant ambitions.

Welcome Home

2000 Greet B. C. Boys

Boston College football today returned to the classroom. From here on it will be hard for the grid warriors who early last evening returned to Boston.

Dame Boston and her children didn't forget the Eagles, defeated in the Cotton Bowl.

Headed by Mayor Tobin and a combination Boston Fireman-Boston College Band, more than 2000 persons turned out and cheered the Texas travelers even more loudly than the crowd which saw them off the day after Christmas.

WELCOMED BY TOBIN

Once a makeshift speakers platform was planted in the middle of the lobby, the cheering and speech making started.

Mayor Tobin, at the request of Cheer Leader Bill Joy delivered a welcome home address.

The oratory of Mayor Tobin started the parade and before the program had closed most of the hall playing Eagles had said a few words.

Charlie O'Rourke was hoisted onto the platform and responded with words of appreciation for the grand reception tendered him and his mates. The crowd laughed when he said from his raised perch:

"I'm looking for my mother. I couldn't locate her in the crowd but this gives me my chance."

Lou Montgomery also spoke.

PLAYERS SPEAK

After O'Rourke and Montgomery, Capt. Ernie Schwotzer, Justin McGowan, Dick Harrison, Henry Toczylowski, Bob Jauron and George Kerr all spoke.

Head Coach Frank Leahy was not present, having slipped off the train in Buffalo, N. Y., to take in the wedding of his wife's brother. Assistant Coaches Ed McKeever, Johnny Druze, Ted Galligan and Joe McArdle, and others of the official party, anxious to get back to home firesides, slipped out a side exit.

It was a tired but happy lot of sombrero-crowned, souvenir-weighted Eagles who returned last night.

Today, though, all the glitter and glamour had ended and the lads were again just plain "students" at Chestnut Hill.

Bouts Last Night

By the Associated Press

ST. LOUIS—Henry Armstrong, 136½, welterweight champion, Los Angeles, knocked out Joe Ghnouly, 135½, St. Louis (3).

BOSTON—Larry Rolvin, 120½, Providence, R. I., outpointed Jimmy Gilligan, 124, Buffalo, N. Y. (10).

EIGHT N. E. BOYS GO SOUTH EARLY TO BEES' SCHOOL

By BILL GRIMES

Believing that a fortnight of private instruction will be beneficial to his outstanding recruits, Bob Quinn has invited a score of youngsters to be his guests at Bradenton, Fla.

The lucky rookies can thank Sebby Sisti and Phil Masi for their southern trip.

A year ago Quinn invited Sisti and Masi to work out with the Bees at Bradenton. Sisti was just out of Canisius high school of Buffalo, N. Y., and Masi had been picked up after being made a free agent by Judge Landis.

Sisti and Masi proved such apt pupils, Quinn decided that Manager Casey Stengel and his coaches, George Kelley and Johnny Cooney, could hasten the development of the most promising rookies if he established a Bees' baseball school at Bradenton.

BEES' GROUP PICKED

From the Bees, Bob Quinn selected Tom Earley, Roxbury strong boy; Joe Callahan, East Boston, former Northeastern captain; George Barnicle, the former caddy from the Oak Hill Country Club at Fitchburg; Al Veigel, a right handed pitcher brought up from Evansville late last season; Sisti, Billy Wietlemann, who played shortstop during the last month of the '39 season; Masi, Stan Andrews, a Lynn product; five outfielders, Chet Ross, Bama Rowell, Chet Clemens, Bob Loane, Hubert Bates and first baseman Les Scarsella.

From the Hartford Club, Al Lavery, Oxford, Mass; Frank Lamanna and Jewett Wolfe, who hails from the Buffalo district, all right handed pitchers; Art Johnson, Winchester, and Bill Boehringer, another boy from the Bison City, and Catcher Mike Sandlock, who lives in Greenwich, Ct., drew the lucky numbers.

Joe Fryer, another southpaw hurler; Catcher Joe Antolick and Infielder Al Roberge, who belong to Evansville, were Bob Coleman's selections.

6 NEW ENGLANDERS

The Bees' baseball school pupils will report at Bradentown on Feb 13, at which time Stengel, Kelly and Cooney will take over.

Of the 23 players who'll be at Bradenton the middle of next month, eight are New Englanders. Greater Boston will be represented by Earley, Callahan, Johnson, Andrews, Roberge, Lavery and Barnicle.

They are scheduled to leave here on the morning of Feb. 13 and will be joined at New York, by Sandlock and the four Buffalo delegates, Sisti, Ross, Wolfe and Boehringer. At Philadelphia Antolick, a catcher from the Allentown club of the Inter State League, will join the New Englanders and Lamanna will climb aboard at Washington.

Manager Stengel and Coach Kelly will come East with three Californians, Lorne, Clemens and Bates, while Masi will be routed through Cincinnati, where he'll meet Wietlemann, Veigel, Fryer and Scarsella.

WINCHESTER BOY

Of the Greater Bostonians who'll be at the Bradenton school, the fans have seen Earley, Barnicle, Andrews and Callahan, who were up last fall. But they have yet to see Johnson, Roberge and Lavery.

Johnson, who is a southpaw hurler, graduated from Winchester high a year ago last June. He is a six footer and weighs about 185. Until he was sent to Evansville late last season, Johnson hadn't been given a real chance to show his ability. Under Bob Coleman, Johnson won four games and came up without a single loss.

Roberge is a former Keith Academy infielder and as fine a looking prospect as the Bees have on any farm club. He was the best infielder in the Pony League last season and if he develops as expected at Bradenton, he may be moved into Hartford.

Al Lavery has great prospects, according to no less an authority than Coleman, who knows his ball players. Mike Snadlock, the eighth New England, was the best catcher in the Pony League and looks like another Masi.

CASEY BANKS ON LOANE

Sisti and Ross, two of the Buffalo representatives, are familiar to Bees fans but the other half of that delegation, Boehringer and Wolfe, are left and right-handed pitchers respectively. Wolfe and Boehringer were with Charleston, W. Va., last season and complied fine Mid-Atlantic League records.

Stengel is counting on Loane, who was the ranking outfielder of the Eastern League last year. Loane played with Springfield and was brought up to the American League by Bucky Harris of the Senators and returned after one game.

The Springfield club tried to send Loane, who at the time was leading the Eastern League in hitting, to a Class B club and Bob refused to report.

He made an agreement with Owner Cambria to purchase his release if he wasn't drafted and passed up an opportunity to join the Giants to sign with the Bees.

Willard Picks Conn As Louis' Successor

SOMERSET, Pa., Jan. 5 (AP)—Billy Conn, the light-heavyweight champ from Pittsburgh, is Jess Willard's selection as the leading possibility to dethrone Joe Louis. The giant Willard, who ended the reign of Heavyweight Kingpin Jack Johnson, said the only "if" was that Conn must get more weight and "I think he will get that soon."

Rhumba Victim

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5 (AP)—Harry (Bolero) Cooper isn't golfing just now. Blame the rhumba, he moaned as he abandoned a shot at his third Los Angeles open title.

Blushing clear through a heavy coat of tan, Cooper related he pulled a wrist muscle as he and his wife, rhumba locked, went into a twirl. He rhumbaed to the left. He should have rhumbaed to the right.

THANX TO B. LANDON, NEW YORK

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

I HAVE BEEN receiving numerous posters and publicity releases from Dewey Fragetta, with offices on Broadway, New York city. Dewey is the nearest thing to the late Leo P. Flynn of the Golden Twenties that the boxing game has produced.

Fragetta uses the following caption over his latest boxing poster:

"Confidence built this boxing business."

He then lists the names of 26 boxers for whom he is arranging matches. The Fragetta list includes Buddy Knox, Paul Junior, Tony Dupre, Tiger Jack Fox, Bernie Miller, Vince Pimpinelli, and other sturdy fighting men.

Fragetta has his ring stars in all classes, and at all prices. If you have $1000 you wish to pay a boxer, Dewey will ship you a $1000 fighter C. O. D., while if you have only $75 to invest in the cauliflower industry the obliging Fragetta will produce a $75 scrapper.

"One must have as much variety in the boxing business as is needed in a general store in a small town," said Dewey. "My success has been in giving boxing promoters who are my customers what they wish and at a proper price."

Success of Leo P. Flynn

WHEN I FIRST met the late Leo P. Flynn, he was traveling around the New England circuit with $125 fighters. In those days, Flynn was satisfied to show a net profit of $100 for his boxer and himself after making a trip to Maine, Rhode Island or Boston. A $500 gate was often something about which to cheer.

If the promoter only had use for $50 fighters, Leo would step into a gym, and come out of it with an armful of youngsters who would be happy if he paid them off with $25.

As boxing gained in popularity during the war and later became big business, Flynn increased the number of boxers under his management. During the height of the boxing boom, Flynn had more than 100 boxers in his fistic stable. He was very successful in keeping them busy. The height of his managerial skill was on a Thanksgiving night in the Golden Twenties when he had 80 boxers in action in rings all over the United States.

In booking tours for his top boxers like Dave Shade and "Kid" Norfolk, Flynn was a master on the matter of transportation. He made each promoter pay full transportation from New York to the city where the contest was being held. With often a dozen promoters sending transportation, the profit on this item alone was large.

Mrs. Flynn Was Also Capable Matchmaker

MRS. FLYNN WAS also a capable matchmaker. When Leo was out of town with boxers, promoters desiring members of the Flynn fistic stable merely had to call Mrs. Flynn on the telephone and they could get anything from a flyweight to a heavyweight.

It was part of Flynn's system to try to make the promoter show a profit.

"Unless we permit the promoters to make money, there will not be any outlet for boxers," Flynn would tell rival managers.

Leo was usually satisfied with a fair percentage of the gate receipts.

Flynn refused to get steamed up when one of his boxers lost a close decision in a good bout. One night at the Arena, Eddie Shevlin received the verdict over Dave Shade in a thrilling battle. Many of the fans thought Shade was entitled to the decision, and they swarmed around Flynn.

"I think Shade was robbed, Leo," shouted one fan.

"Maybe he was and then again maybe he wasn't," replied Flynn. "One thing is sure, and that is that Shade and Shevlin will draw a helluva house in a return bout."

When Shade and Shevlin battled in a return engagement at Mechanics Building they drew a capacity crowd that paid $20,000 into the box office. Shade won, and so Leo had a decision and also a $5000 purse.

Named Garden Matchmaker by Rickard

TEX RICKARD recognized Flynn's ability and named him matchmaker of the New York Garden. At the time there was not any Boxing Commission rule against a matchmaker using boxers under his control at his own club. During this carefree period the Flynn ring stars made frequent appearances in the Garden, and usually produced action.

Flynn never asked for any favors for his boxers. If they couldn't stand up on their own once the gong sounded for the first round, Leo would tell them to get a job.

When the New York Athletic Commission passed a rule barring a matchmaker from having his own boxers appear at his club, Flynn resigned his post at the Garden and went out front with his fistic stable.

Rickard later selected Flynn to have charge of Jack Dempsey's training for his bout with Jack Sharkey, and for his Chicago battle with Gene Tunney. Flynn's greatest disappointment was when Dempsey failed to knock Tunney out at Chicago.

I doubt that Dewey Fragetta will ever be behind as good a combination of fighters as Dempsey, Shade and Norfolk, but he certainly will keep the caliber of boxers he has under his management active.

It is quite a task to feed 26 boxers. The best way to accomplish this result is by keeping them busy in the ring. With boxing picking up in all sections of the country, Fragetta should do all right for himself, and also for the boxers under his direction.

Ice Speedsters Rush to Enter Silver Skates Derby at Garden

There has been an early rush of skaters to enter the Silver Skates Derby of the Boston Evening American-Daily Record that will be held at the Boston Garden on Feb. 4.

Skating has been enjoying a tremendous boom this winter on account of the cold weather that has frozen many ponds. The youthful skaters have had an oportunity to display their skill and get needed practice.

The Silver Skates Derby has a tremendous pull on the public, and the announcement that it will be held in the Garden on Feb. 4 was enthusiastically received.

In former years when the Derby has been staged in the Garden, it has drawn between 13,000 and 15,000 people.

The Derby offers an attractive program. In addition to the speed and distance races there will be special exhibitions of fancy skating and various novelties.

All seniors competing in the Derby must register with William C. Hill, secretary New England Skating Association, 321 Auburndale ave., Auburndale. A 25 cent registration fee is required for seniors.

In former years the midget races have given their share of laughs and spills and this feature has once more been retained.

Laughs Packed In Ice Follies

If you like to laugh, as who doesn't, take a peek at barrel-jumper Harris Legg portraying a snow-man eight feet tall during the "Arctic Fantasy" number of the Ice Follies of 1940, which starts a seven-day run at the Garden on Jan. 15.

Legg is a riot in the number which opens the most elaborate show in the four-year history of the Follies.

The spectacular opening combines the full forces of the cast of 65 into a colorful prelude.

Sport Night to Aid Finn Relief Fund

The biggest Sport Night in the history of Boston is being arranged, for the benefit of Finland, to take place in Mechanics Building on Feb. 14. The entire proceeds will be donated to the relief fund.

Athletes wishing to appear should contact U. R. Paakonen, 24 School st., or call at headquarters, 470 Stuart st., Boston.

Wilson Clicks At Tropical

Picking up where he left off at Charles Town, Dave Wilson, ace turf handicapper of the Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, is continuing his winning pace at Tropical Park.

In the past two days, Dave has had seven of his top choices bob down in front, four of them scoring yesterday and three the previous day.

Yesterday, Wilson's second choice in the opening race turned in a winning effort; his top choice in the fourth race ran second while his second choice won; in the seventh and eighth races four of his selections finished in the money.

His winner yesterday were: Sure Cure, 2d race, $6.30; Miss Gallant, 3d race, $5.20; Penabud, 5th race, $10.40; Jelwell, 6th race, $6.10.

Wednesday's winners were: Dreel, 1st race, $4.20; Toy Foot, 3d race, $6.20; and Ambuscade, 4th race, $4.60.

Rapides Threaten to End Olympics Win String

Boston's Olympics started their eight-game win streak against Lachine Rapides at the Arena last month, and they may see it ended when they clash with the same club at the Garden tonight and tomorrow night before their customary 12,000 gatherings.

Both Frankie Spain and Paul Guibord, famous Dartmouth twins are out with injuries, and so the team will be playing with revamped first and second lines when they face the now flying Canadians.

Guibord is the team's leading scorer, with 11 goals and eight assists, and Spain is well up, with 12 goals and five assists.

The Rapides, on the other hand, never were better. They brought their point total up to 26 Wednesday when they defeated Shawinigan Falls, 3 to 1, and a double win here would put them within one point of the Olympics, who are now tied for the lead at 31 points with Sherbrooke.

Jack Harris will take Spain's place in the second line, but Hago Harrington had not decided today whom he would use at Guibord's right wing spot on the first line.

He had his choice of bringing Mort Buckley of Cambridge up from the Junior Olympics or of using Garnet Isola of Worcester.

Bolvin Flashes In Ring Win

A new ring title prospect for New England was being hailed today in Larry Bolvin of Providence, who battered Irish Jimmy Gilligan of Buffalo in one of the Argonne ring show features at Mechanics Building.

Bolvin, 120-pounder who once won the All-America feather title, had Gilligan on the verge of a knockout during the final two rounds of a ten-round bout to earn the decision.

George Salamone, 131½, of East Boston, also was impressive as he kayoed Jerry Zullo of Chelsea, 135, in three rounds.

Young Byron of Roxbury won on a technical K. O. over Al Castonguay of Holyoke; Al Bouchard of Kingston knocked out Johnny Hayes of Roxbury in four stanzas, and Darcey Robertson of New York took a decision from Dusty Brown of Fall River in other bouts.

Roxbury Fete For Ringman Daley

Billy Daley of Roxbury will be guest of honor at a testimonial and dance at Winslow Hall, Roxbury, on Wednesday, Jan. 17. Daley's friends have banded together to start the 126-pound All-Eastern champion on his way to the West Coast with plenty of encouragement

Ski Scribblings

BY "TAP" GOODENOUGH

SKIERS NEED MORE SNOW, MR. WEATHERMAN! How about it? Radio St. Peter and tell him we're all still praying for an abundance of white powdery flakes. Tell him the season is on!

Slopes and trails must have a deeper covering. Mountains want a heavier mantle . . . Thank you! . . .

The present skiing season can be likened to a racehorse that breaks slowly from the gates, on the wrong lead.

Soon, however, under the urging of "Jockey Snow," the racer will settle into his best stride, and will be running smoothly when he turns into the backstretch . . . So, have patience, skiers! The best is yet to come!

CAUTION VITAL

Until a real snowfall arrives, EXTREME CAUTION should be employed by all who use the winged boards. You can't safely speed down a slope covered with only a few inches of powder where a base is lacking.

Rocks and stumps still loom menacingly. Strive for safety at all times. CONTROLLED SKIING is the key to early-season safety.

SKIING PROSPECTS for the week-end remain the same as last week, ranging generally from fair to poor . . . Excellent skiing, however still prevails in the Mount Mansfield area at Stowe, Vt. . . . At Rutland, Vt., on the Pico Peak open slopes, skiing is fair on limited areas, but the Sunset Schuss midpoint is good.

OTHER SKIING

Fred Nachbaur reports fair to good running on the South open slopes and Stonebar trail at Gilford, N. H., skating excellent.

In Bristol, N. H., our scout, Don Holton, says skiing is possible on some open slopes, and likewise in Bridgewater. The tow is running at Newhampton.

Plymouth, N. H., has fair going on open slopes.

In Franconia Notch, N. H., the upper parts only of the trails are fair on Cannon Mountain . . . Skiing is good on Mt. Agassiz in Bethlehem and fair sport can be had at Dickinson's tow in Lisbon and on Mt. Eustis in Littleton . . . New snow will improve all spots, of course!

Stuff About Skiers:

Canadian capers were enjoyed by many over the past New Year's week-end . . . Annice Brink, the skiing Fashion Editor of the Boston American, found grand sport at Mont Tremblant, which, she says, is an ideal site . . . Act Lac Beaufort DOCTOR BASTIE of Boston had good skiing on the slopes. He stated, however, that even this spot needs a great deal more snow . . . OSCAR CYR certified ski instructor from Manchester, N. H., ran in true expert style at fashionable St. Sauveur . . .

"It was the best holiday ever!" exclaimed ART ROSS, JR., speaking of his skiing sojourn at the Iron Mine Inn, Franconia Notch . . .

SOUTHERNERS SEEK SNOW

MRS. PAUL O'NEILL, JR., tells us she has received letters from folks as far South as Louisiana enquiring about winter sports in this region . . . Incidentally, Mr. W. Reinders and family of five from Amsterdam, Holland, spent "th week-end at McKenzie's Lodge.

"RIP" DUNBAR, commercial artist of note, is an example for all beginners. Last year, he didn't even like skiing. However, he borrowed some boards and tried out the sport.

RESULT: He has bought a complete outfit this season, and really can ski! . . .

Ski School Scoops:

The third official opening of the PLYMOUTH SWISS SKI SCHOOL is scheduled for tomorrow and Sunday, Jan. 6-7, with unofficial races and other activities planned.

PLENTY OF FUN DUE

There should be plenty of fun in this region over the week-end. Newcomers to the teaching staff include Harry Hall from Switzerland; Helmut Dax, recently arrived from Munich and Plymouth's own expert skier, Dick Person . . .

Joining the FRANCONIA SKI SCHOOL will be Norwood Ball, former Dow Academy and University of New Hampshire ski star.

The LAMERE SCHOOL of American Skiing plans regular daily classes at Twin Mountain and Whitefield, N. H., with special evening classes throughout the Northern Slopes area. This school has resident instructors at the Supreme View Inn and the Hillside Lodge . . .

JACK DURRANCE NAMED

JACK DURRANCE, former Dartmouth varsity skier, has been appointed by the DOC in conjunction with Hanover Inn to be ski inscructor for Dartmouth students, local people, and Hanover guests. Walter Prager, coach of the ski team, is kept busy most of the time.

Although not so well known as his brother, Dick, Jack is a very competent ski teacher. He has been a professional since 1937, developing many youngsters.
